MINNEAPOLIS WILL REPAIR N. P. RY. ENGINES

C. C. KYLE, GENERAL STOREKEEPER OF N.P. MAKES STATEMENT

MORE THAN TWO-THIRDS OF THE BRAINERD SHOPS OUTPUT SO HANDLED

FIRST CARS OF MATERIAL LOADED FOR MINNEAPOLIS ON WEDNESDAY

Minneapolis will in the future do the repairing of Northern Pacific railway locomotives and much other equipment.

According to a statement made Thursday morning by C. C. Kyle, of St. Paul, general storekeeper of the Northern Pacific railway company, the Northern Pacific railway company has entered into a contract with the Minneapolis Steel & Machinery Company to do general repairs on 150 of its heaviest locomotives. This is more than one-half, probably two-thirds of the output of the Brainerd shops. It would run, said Mr. Kyle, from 250 to 300 locomotives if of lighter type.

Material Shipped

Seven carloads of material were loaded at the shops store room on Wednesday for shipment to Minneapolis to be used in locomotive repair work. Such shipments will continue, said Mr. Kyle.

A main store room will be established at the Minneapolis Steel & Machinery Co. Lots of material will be shipped directly to Minneapolis which will never again be routed via Brainerd to be reshipped here, said Mr. Kyle.

Contract Entered Into

The contract with the Minneapolis Steel & Machinery Co., said Mr. Kyle, was entered into two or three weeks ago. They first contracted for the repair of 72 engines and this was later increased to 150 engines.

First Engines to be Repaired

The first engines to be repaired, which had the strike been settled would have been repaired in Brainerd are several T and W engines. The T's are numbered from 2300 to 2500 and the W's from 1500 to 1800. They are two of the largest type of freight engines, being the Prairie and Mikado engines.

Brainerd's Output

J. P. Anderson, superintendent of the Northern Pacific railway shops, said Brainerd's biggest output ran from 12 to 14 engines a month. The contract with Minneapolis almost equalled Brainerd's whole output.

The labor item, said he, which was lost to Brainerd, ran from $4,000 to $6,000 an engine or at least $50,000 a month.

Reduction in Manufacturing Plant

There will be a great reduction in the manufacturing plant at Brainerd, said Mr. Kyle. Material formerly manufactured at Brainerd will be made in other places, said he.

"In my opinion," said Mr. Kyle, "the foundry at Brainerd will never be re-opened.

Other Railway Repair Work

TheMinne apolis Steel & Machinery Co., said Mr. Kyle, will also repair 72 engines for the Great Northern, also various engines for the Rock Island, Great Western, Minneapolis & St. Louis.

Not Depending on Brainerd

"For a great many years," said Mr. Kyle, "the Northern Pacific has depended very much on Brainerd, but we will not do so in the future."

"Of course we have a large investment in Brainerd. There will continue to be shops in Brainerd, but there will be much less work done and I doubt if they will ever again attain the size and importance they had in the past".

"Much material will also be made outside and much other material will never again be shipped into Brainerd and distributed from Brainerd", said Mr. Kyle.

Fate of Europe Depends on Great Britain

TWO MEN BEATEN UP IN BRAINERD LAST NIGHT; STATEMENT BY U. S. DEP. MARSHAL

In spite of the fact that the streets of Brainerd Wednesday night were patrolled by an increased police force, sheriff and deputies and deputy United States marshals, two replacement men were beaten up in front of a pool room, according to a statement made by Deputy United States Marshal Leo Mayer in charge of deputy marshals here.

"These two men" said Mr. Mayer in his statement, "who were assaulted last night at the Walsh & Anderson pool hall were ex-service men and men who are entitled to the fullest protection on the streets of Brainerd by the local authorities. They have just as much right in that employment as though they had been employed in any other industry. If the local authorities do not see fit to furnish protection for such men and do not enforce the ordinances of the city and laws of the state then, as deputy United States marshal, it becomes my duty to do so. The disgraceful affairs that have occurred on the streets of Brainerd within the last few weeks are a menace to the citizenship of this city. I want to request the cooperation of all the lawabiding citizens to bring an end to the present state of affairs."

Three men in an automobile parked on the railway right of way, when requested to move on last night and refusing to do so, were arrested by Deputy United States Marshal Mayer on the charge of trespassing and will be brought before United States Court Commissioner A. D. Polk for arraignment.

The replacement men, in a large body, visited the business section of Brainerd and of the two men injured in fights, one sustained a bump on the head and the other had his lips cut and some teeth knocked out.

Deputy United States Marshal Mayer has two assistants, and two more deputy marshals arrived this morning, being sent after appealing to United States Marshal Edward Rustad at St. Paul. More are coming, for the latter said he would send enough to cope with the situation at Brainerd.

Names are Given

The three men charged with trespassing on railway right of way, as given to the Dispatch by Deputy United States Marshal Leo. Mayer, are Henry Goltz, Edward Elling and Frank Kaufman, all of Brainerd. They were brought before U. S. Commissioner A. D. Polk this afternoon, charged with the violation of the U. S. injunction and bonds were fixed at $500 each

Trial on Today

In municipal court this morning Harry B Gorman, charged with assault in the second degree, was bound over to the district court which convenes next month, his bail being fixed at $500

Gorman is charged with shooting Lorenzo V. Whitmarsh, the bullet hitting a metal strap which attaches an artificial limb to Whitmarsh's body, only leaving a black and blue mark on the skin. The shooting is alleged to have occurred on Saturday night.

FREE STATE WINS BONAR LAW PLEDGE

IRISH MINISTERS RETURN TO DUBLIN WITH ASSURANCE CONSTITUTION WILL BE ACCEPTED

London, Oct. 26—The Irish treaty is safe in the hands of the new British government. Any lingering doubt as to this fact was removed today when President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State; Kevin O'Higgins, home secretary, and Hugh Kennedy, legal adviser, arrived in London, where they had a long interview with Prime Minister Bonar Law.

It is stated assurances were exchanged that the treaty would be approved by the British on one hand and that it would be carried out in good faith by the Irish on the other.

The Irish ministers returned to Ireland, and today it is expected Dail Eireann will give the constitution a full reading and pass it into law. It will then become the business of the British parliament to approve it, and Mr. Bonar Law has given assurances there will be no hitch.

Parliament is Dissolved

Sandringham, England, Oct. 26—King George signed a proclamation here today dissolving parliament.

The general election, which will be the show down between Premier Bonar Law and Lloyd George, was set for November 15th.

The new parliament is to meet on November 20, according to the royal proclamation.

King George signed the proclamation on the recommendation of Premier Bonar Law. The majority in the new House of Commons must be favorable to the unionist government or the new premier or Bonar Law's cabinet will fail.

Premier Law's Statement

Glasgow, Oct. 26—"I will do my utmost to secure the well being of industry, which is the real foundation of the country," Premier Bonar Law stated her today in his first campaign speech.

The new premier received a rousing ovation when he appeared before members of the royal exchange at noon. His speech was very short.

EVOLUTION TEACHING IS NOT RELISHED

ISSUE PROTEST CALL FOLLOWING RECOMMENDATIONS BF WILLIAM BRYAN

(By United Press.)

Minneapolis, Oct. 26—A call for a state wide meeting of Protestant ministers to start court action to prevent the teaching of evolution in public schools of the state was issued today.

This is the first organized movement against Darwinism.

The action follows recommendations of William Jennings Bryan in a lecture on evolution before 12,000 people in St. Paul last Sunday.

Condemning evolution as a "program of infidelity pulled off in the name of science" seven ministers of Minneapolis in a recommendation today urged that all Christians appeal to the legislature to eliminate from all tax supported schools "this anti-scientific and anti-Scriptural theory of the origin of man and the universe."

The state wide Protestant meeting may be held next week, according to Dr. W. B. Riley, pastor of the First Baptist church, Minneapolis. He headed the committee of seven which were appointed yesterday.

MINNESOTA NATIONAL GUARD INCREASE

(By United Press)

St. Paual, Oct. 26—Plans to increase the membership of the Minnesota National Guard to 22,000 men if necessary, were being discussed today by the Minnesota National guard association at the capitol.

More than 200 officers of the 38th annual meeting had reports for E. A. Walsh who recently returned from Washington where he conferred with the general staff relative to increasing the Minnesota National Guard allotment under the national defense act. There are now about 5,000 active members of the national guard in this state, according to Walsh. It is proposed to increase the guard to the strength of a division, but not immediately he said, unless in case of necessity.

POLITICAL SITUATION IN ENGLAND IS MOMENTOUS ONE

FINANCIAL CRASH IN EUROPE MAY BE STAVED OFF, REPORTED

DEPENDS ON OUTCOME OF THE BRITISH INTERNAL SITUATION

By A. L. BRADFORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, Oct. 26—The fate of Europe now largely hangs on the political situation in Great Britain where Lloyd George has been succeeded by the Bonar Law cabinet, authoritative circles here today believe.

The political situation in Britain is one of the many important factors entering into deliberations now going on to determine what practical move if any the United States can make to relieve the plight of Europe.

Whether the financial clash in Europe, which is the big fear now of statesmen and diplomats, also the great powers, will come soon depends to a great extent on the outcome of the British internal situation, it is believed by these observers.

These quarters believe that the minds of most of the voters of Great Britain are now tending towards a desire that England pull out of European affairs so far as possible and as far as active participation is concerned—an attitude it is said, similar to that which was evidenced by the American voters in the elections which brought the Harding administration into power. It is not certain, however, that the wishes of the British voters in this case will be plainly shown.

The Bonar Law government is regarded in high British circles here as solely a regime for working out the election to be held November 15th. If the election records the sentiment of the country as favoring withdrawal from continental affairs, except so far as necessary to protect British interests, and fi the leaders of the government carry out this sentiment it is feared in informed British circles here that the financial crash will come in Europe with chaos following in its wake.

FRANCE, ENGLAND ASK U. S. TO JOIN IN NEAR EAST PARLEY

FRENCH GOVERNMENT BACKS THE SUGGESTION OF LORD CURZON

AIM TO SECURE PERMANENT PEACE IN THE NEAR EAST

(By United Press)

Paris, Oct. 26.—France and England have agreed to invite the United States to participate in the Near East peace parley to be held at Lascisanne on November 13th, it was authoritatively stated today.

The French government has backed the suggestion of Lord Curton, foreign minister of Great Britain, that America be asked to take part in the deliberations because the Lacisanne pact will be a modification of the treaty of Sevres which was drawn up at the end of the World war with American collaboration.

Curzon embodied his suggestion in a note addressed to the French government.

The object of the parley is to draw up a plan of permanent peace in the Near East.

CLAIMS SHE SAW HALL-MILLS MURDER; CHARGES WOMAN WITH DOUBLE KILLING

GERALD P. OVERTON
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 26—The despairing death cry of Mrs. Eleanor Mills, murdered with the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall on the night of September 14th, has lead a woman who claims she saw the crime to charge a prominent New Brunswick woman with the double killing.

Mrs. James Gibson, alleged eye witness to the shooting of the pastor and the choir singer, declared today she is haunted by the dying screams of little Mrs. Mills and that she will name the woman who assisted in the killing.

Without naming publicly the guilty woman, Mrs. Gibson made her statement so as to point the way to an arrest.

The state forces have been in a state of unusual activity for the past 24 hours. Certain houses of New Brunswick are being closely guarded. Best authority today declared the arrest, which is expected to result from Mrs. Gibson's story, will not come today, and probably not Friday.

Prosecutor Mott in an interview stated he would make an arrest at the earliest possible moment. Mrs. Gibson stated she saw the pastor and Mrs. Mills killed by a man and woman and gave the man's name saying that Mrs. Mills shrieked it out as she fell. In another version she said the woman accomplice called out the name.

Mrs. Gibson has been quoted as saying she later identified the woman "but I felt sorry for her" until she recalled the death screams of Mrs. Mills.

Wilbur Mott, appointed by Attorney General McCran to head the probe into the Hall-Mills murder mystery, stated he would summon all members of the Hall and Mills families, the Hall servants and members of the congregation of the church of St. John the Evangelist for questioning today.

These are the ones to be questioned: Mrs. Frances Hall, widow of the slain rector; Henry and Willie Stevens, brothers of Mrs. Hall; Ralph Gorsline, 'vestryman of Rev. Hall's church; Mrs. Addison Clark, mutual friend of the Hall and Mills families; James Mills, husband of the murdered choir leader.

"I could make an arrest now, but I prefer to wait until the case is clinched," Wilbur A. Mott, special prosecutor in the Hall-Mills murder investigation told the newspaper men today.

"We have a definite line to follow," Mott said, "I know of no reason why we should discredit the story told by Mrs. Gibson who said she was an eye witness of the killing."

"There is a difference between arrest and conviction. I prefer to wait until we have clinched the evidence in hand so we can go right ahead with the trial as soon as possible after the arrest is made."

New York in the Case

New York, Oct. 26.—Working on the theory that New York gunmen killed Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, police of New York have been called into the case and are watching certain suspects.

Captain Arthur Carey, of the New York homicide bureau, was to confer today with Col. Schwartzkopf of the New Jersey state police, with regard to hunting down the gunmen. The new theory is that the persons wishing the clergyman and the choir singer disposed of hired New York thugs to do the killing.

LIQUOR TERMS BEGIN FILLING FIFTH JAIL

JUDGE MORRIS SENTENCES 2 TO WINONA BASTILE—AS "ADVANCE XMAS PRESENTS"

Minneapolis, Oct. 26—Having filled the Hennepin, Ramsey, Wright and McLeod county jails with prisoners convicted in bootlegging cases, Federal Judge Page Morris today started in to fill the Winona county bastile.

Frank Dutler, 28 Washington avenue S., was given 60 days in the Winona jail and fined $25 for possession of liquor. James Malone, same address, was sentenced to 60 days in the same jail for the same offense while Henry Hill was fined $100.

"I want it understood that I am not being vindictive in passing these sentences," said Judge Morris. "I simply want to keep these people from making fools of themselves."

In sentencing Dutler and Malone, the court said it was giving "advance Christmas presents."

"You will get out of jail in time to meet Santa Claus," he said.

TILDEN MAY NEVER WIELD RACQUET AGAIN

(By United Press.)

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—William P. Tilden II, world's tennis champion, may never wield a racquet again, Dr. W. Swartley, who operated on him for an infected finger last night, said in an interview with the United Press today.

The hospital reports following the operation here that Tilden, whose hand became infected through an abrasion sustained in a match at Riverton, N. J., was "much better."

The infected finger had been slit open. Dr. Swartley, however, said there was a slight chance of a tendon in the hand stiffening and if this occurred, Tilden would never play championship tennis again.

18,000 VICTIMS SAVED FROM LOSS

BY EXPOSE OF TWIN CITY AUTO TIRE SWINDLE

(By United Press.)

Minneapolis, Oct. 26—Eighteen thousand victims were saved from possible loss by the expose yesterday of the Twin City Auto Tire swindle, it was revealed by postal inspectors today.

Investigation by inspectors revealed 18,000 postal cards already addressed in the quarters of Joseph Schindemann, which were intended for immediate mailing.

Replies continued, many containing money, to pour into the office of the Edlund Tire company, and swelled the total of $25,000 which had already been collected. No evidence of any tire for sale was found in the place as advertised, inspectors said.

JUMPS TO HER DEATH FROM COUNTY JAIL

(By United Press)

Minneapolis, Oct. 26.—Esther Goldhammer, 25, arrested yesterday afternoon for shop lifting, removed a wire screen from the Hennepin county jail and leaped to her death last night. Her body fell into an area way, falling about six stories. Police said they found a large amount of merchandise in her apartment believed to have been stolen.

IS CHARGED WITH SLAYING HIS WIFE

Cleveland, Oct. 26.—Henry Burns, 44, was under arrest here today on a charge of slaying his wife, Hazel Burns, whose mutilated body was found in a shallow grave west of Parinesville.

The body was buried without clothing in a desolate spot after the woman had been beaten to death. Police said they were searching for another woman.

HARD TO UNITE IN 1 PARTY RADICALS AND LIBERALISM

IN THE NOVEMBER 7 ELECTION THESE FORCES WILL DIVIDE STRENGTH

MINOR PARTIES GO THEIR OWN WAY AND NOMINATE OWN CANDIDATES

By L. C. MARTIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
(Copyright 1922 by United Press.)

Washington, Oct. 26—Efforts to unite the forces of radicalism, liberalism, unrest and protest into a cohesive political unit appears again to have failed.

In the November 7th election as in previous ones, these forces will divide their strength among a large number of candidates.

This prediction was made at the attempt to put the radicals and liberals of all shades under one leadership so that they would all vote for one set of congressional candidates, and make a stronger showing.

Socialists, socialist labor groups, farmer labor parties, progressives and others who have broken away from the two major parties were urged to agree locally on candidates to be supported by all the liberals or "protest" voters of that congressional district or state.

It was urged that where the farmer labor party was strongest it put up candidates; that the socialist put them where they were strongest. Everybody else who did not want a republican or democrat elected were to rally around the third candidate. It now appears that, in their usual style, the minor parties have gone their separate ways nominating their own candidates and thus have split their strength. In Illinois, for example, where the labor farmer and socialist groups combined could make an impressive showing, they have failed to unite and in nearly every congressional district of the state there is a socialist candidate for congress, and a farmer labor candidate.

In New York state some progress has been made towards uniting the various groups. In a great many districts the socialist and farmer labor groups have united on a common candidate although this is not totally the case.

Liberal leaders have for months predicted that the two major parties would be shocked at the ways for the protest vote this year.

GREAT NORTHERN CARS HELD BY OTHER LINES

(By United Press.)

St. Paul, Oct. 26.—Ralph Budd, president of the Great Norhtern railway, today was skeptical of the effectiveness of the order of the American Railway association for movement of cars from the east to the northwest to handle grain and potato crops.

The car service division of the railway association ordered cars of the northwestern lines returned to their owners at once, according to advices from Washington.

"I sincerely hope that the order will result in bringing back to us the cars needed so badly at this time. The shortage has not been relieved and if anything, is worse.

"I am frank to confess I am skeptical about the effectiveness of the order. The Great Northern was the first to put in an application for return of its cars. We have sufficient equipment to take care of the congestion on our line if it is returned to us in time from the eastern roads."

Three Are Acquitted of Bergen Murder Charge

(By United Press.)

Hackensack, N. J., Oct. 6.—George Cline, Alice Thornton and Charles Scullion stood acquitted today of a charge of murdering Jack Bergen, motion picture actor.

The jury yesterday brought in the verdict after only a brief deliberation after hearing Cline's story that Bergen was accidentally shot when he made a treacherous move as the two went upstairs to fight a duel over the affections of Cline's wife.

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 26—The despairing death cry of Mrs. Eleanor Mills, murdered with the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall on the night of September 14th, has lead a woman who claims she saw the crime to charge a prominent New Brunswick woman with the double killing.

Mrs. James Gibson, alleged eye witness to the shooting of the pastor and the choir singer, declared today she is haunted by the dying screams of little Mrs. Mills and that she will name the woman who assisted in the killing.

Without naming publicly the guilty woman, Mrs. Gibson made her statement so as to point the way to an arrest.

The state forces have been in a state of unusual activity for the past 24 hours. Certain houses of New Brunswick are being closely guarded. Best authority today declared the arrest, which is expected to result from Mrs. Gibson's story, will not come today, and probably not Friday.

Prosecutor Mott in an interview stated he would make an arrest at the earliest possible moment. Mrs. Gibson stated she saw the pastor and Mrs. Mills killed by a man and woman and gave the man's name saying that Mrs. Mills shrieked it out as she fell. In another version she said the woman accomplice called out the name.

Mrs. Gibson has been quoted as saying she later identified the woman "but I felt sorry for her" until she recalled the death screams of Mrs. Mills.

Wilbur Mott, appointed by Attorney General McCran to head the probe into the Hall-Mills murder mystery, stated he would summon all members of the Hall and Mills families, the Hall servants and members of the congregation of the church of St. John the Evangelist for questioning today.

These are the ones to be questioned: Mrs. Frances Hall, widow of the slain rector; Henry and Willie Stevens, brothers of Mrs. Hall; Ralph Gorsline, vestryman of Rev. Hall's church; Mrs. Addison Clark, mutual friend of the Hall and Mills families; James Mills, husband of the murdered choir leader.

"I could make an arrest now, but I prefer to wait until the case is clinched," Wilbur A. Mott, special prosecutor in the Hall-Mills murder investigation told the newspaper men today.

"We have a definite line to follow," Mott said, "I know of no reason why we should discredit the story told by Mrs. Gibson who said she was an eye witness of the killing."

"There is a difference between arrest and conviction. I prefer to wait until we have clinched the evidence in hand so we can go right ahead with the trial as soon as possible after the arrest is made."

New York in the Case

New York, Oct. 26.—Working on the theory that New York gunmen killed Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, police of New York have been called into the case and are watching certain suspects.

Captain Arthur Carey, of the New York homicide bureau, was to confer today with Col. Schwartzkopf of the New Jersey state police, with regard to hunting down the gunmen. The new theory is that the persons wishing the clergyman and the choir singer disposed of hired New York thugs to do the killing.

LIQUOR TERMS BEGIN FILLING FIFTH JAIL

JUDGE MORRIS SENTENCES 2 TO WINONA BASTILE—AS "ADVANCE XMAS PRESENTS"

Minneapolis, Oct. 26—Having filled the Hennepin, Ramsey, Wright and McLeod county jails with prisoners convicted in bootlegging cases, Federal Judge Page Morris today started in to fill the Winona county bastile.

Frank Dutler, 28 Washington avenue S., was given 60 days in the Winona jail and fined $25 for possession of liquor. James Malone, same address, was sentenced to 60 days in the same jail for the same offense while Henry Hill was fined $100.

"I want it understood that I am not being vindictive in passing these sentences," said Judge Morris. "I simply want to keep these people from making fools of themselves."

In sentencing Dutler and Malone, the court said it was giving "advance Christmas presents."

"You will get out of jail in time to meet Santa Claus," he said.

TILDEN MAY NEVER WIELD RACQUET AGAIN

(By United Press.)

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—William P. Tilden II, world's tennis champion, may never wield a racquet again, Dr. W. Swartley, who operated on him for an infected finger last nigh,t said in an interview with the United Press today.

The hospital reports following the operation here that Tilden, whose hand became infected through an abrasion sustained in a match at Riverton, N. J., was "much better."

The infected finger had been slit open. Dr. Swartley, however, said there was a slight chance of a tendon in the hand stiffening and if this occurred, Tilden would never play championship tennis again.

18,000 VICTIMS SAVED FROM LOSS

BY EXPOSE OF TWIN CITY AUTO TIRE SWINDLE

(By United Press.)

Minneapolis, Oct. 26—Eighteen thousand victims were saved from possible loss by the expose yesterday of the Twin City Auto Tire swindle, it was revealed by postal inspectors today.

Investigation by inspectors revealed 18,000 postal cards already addressed in the quarters of Joseph Schindemann, which were intended for immediate mailing.

Replies continued, many containing money, to pour into the office of the Edlund Tire company, and swelled the total of $25,000 which had already been collected. No evidence of any tire for sale was found in the place as advertised, inspectors said.

JUMPS TO HER DEATH FROM COUNTY JAIL

(By United Press)

Minneapolis, Oct. 26.—Esther Goldhammer, 25, arrested yesterday afternoon for shop lifting, removed a wire screen from the Hennepin county jail and leaped to her death last night. Her body fell into an area way, falling about six stories. Police said they found a large amount of merchandise in her apartment believed to have been stolen.

IS CHARGED WITH SLAYING HIS WIFE

Cleveland, Oct. 26.—Henry Burns, 44, was under arrest here today on a charge of slaying his wife, Hazel Burns, whose mutilated body was found in a shallow grave west of Parinesville.

The body was buried without clothing in a desolate spot after the woman had been beaten to death. Police said they were searching for another woman.

HARD TO UNITE IN 1 PARTY RADICALS AND LIBERALISM

IN THE NOVEMBER 7 ELECTION THESE FORCES WILL DIVIDE STRENGTH

MINOR PARTIES GO THEIR OWN WAY AND NOMINATE OWN CANDIDATES

By L. C. MARTIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
(Copyright 1922 by United Press.)

Washington, Oct. 26—Efforts to unite the forces of radicalism, liberalism, unrest and protest into a cohesive political unit appears again to have failed.

In the November 7th election as in previous ones, these forces will divide their strength among a large number of candidates.

This prediction was made at the attempt to put the radicals and liberals of all shades under one leadership so that they would all vote for one set of congressional candidates, and make a stronger showing.

Socialists, socialist labor groups, farmer labor parties, progressives and others who have broken away from the two major parties were urged to agree locally on candidates to be supported by all the liberals or "protest" voters of that congressional district or state.

It was urged that where the farmer labor party was strongest it put up candidates; that the socialist put them where they were strongest. Everybody else who did not want a republican or democrat elected were to rally around the third candidate. It now appears that, in their usual style, the minor parties have gone their separate ways nominating their own candidates and thus have split their strength. In Illinois, for example, where the labor farmer and socialist groups combined could make an impressive showing, they have failed to unite and in nearly every congressional district of the state there is a socialist candidate for congress, and a farmer labor candidate.

In New York state some progress has been made towards uniting the various groups. In a great many districts the socialist and farmer labor groups have united on a common candidate although this is not totally the case.

Liberal leaders have for months predicted that the two major parties would be shocked at the ways for the protest vote this year.

GREAT NORTHERN CARS HELD BY OTHER LINES

(By United Press.)

St. Paul, Oct. 26.—Ralph Budd, president of the Great Norhtern railway, today was skeptical of the effectiveness of the order of the American Railway association for movement of cars from the east to the northwest to handle grain and potato crops.

The car service division of the railway association ordered cars of the northwestern lines returned to their owners at once, according to advices from Washington.

"I sincerely hope that the order will result in bringing back to us the cars needed so badly at this time. The shortage has not been relieved and if anything, is worse.

"I am frank to confess I am skeptical about the effectiveness of the order. The Great Northern was the first to put in an application for return of its cars. We have sufficient equipment to take care of the congestion on our line if it is returned to us in time from the eastern roads."

Three Are Acquitted of Bergen Murder Charge

(By United Press.)

Hackensack, N. J., Oct. 6.—George Cline, Alice Thornton and Charles Scullion stood acquitted today of a charge of murdering Jack Bergen, motion picture actor.

The jury yesterday brought in the verdict after only a brief deliberation after hearing Cline's story that Bergen was accidentally shot when he made a treacherous move as the two went upstairs to fight a duel over the affections of Cline's wife.

Minneapolis Civic & Commerce Association Expresses Thanks and Grateful to Be Host

More recognition is coming in from Minneapolis, from the fact that the Brainerd Business Men escorted their farmer friends to the National Dairy Show held at the state fair grounds during the week of Oct. 12th.

P. M. Zakariasen, who headed the committee on the Brainerd tour, wrote a letter of thanks to the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association for the many courtesies they extended to the local delegation. A welcoming committee from the Association met the Brainerd party at the Minneapolis city limits and assisted in escorting them to the fair grounds.

In answer to Mr. Zakariasen's letter, Jamse S. Cady, secretary of the Civic and Commerce Association, writes as follows:

"It was mighty kind and thoughtful of you to write us as you did in your letter of the 14th.

"We were proud to have been your host even for the brief period that you were with us and sincerely hope that your party enjoyed themselves and feel that the day spent at the Dairy Exposition was well worth while.

"We hope that we will again have an opportunity to meet the people of your community".

FARRAR TO SING IN MINNEAPOLIS NOV. 1

Minneapolis, Oct. 26—Geraldine Farrar, "the gorgeous Gerry" of the Metropolitan Opera company, who has definitely retired from the operatic stage to devote her time to concert work, will sing in Minneapolis Nov. 1, opening a "master artists course" arranged under the management of R. J. Horgan.

She is to be fotowed on Feb. 21, by Sergei Rachmaninov, and on March 21 by Fritz Kreisler, Mr. Horgan said today.

Farrar will come to Minneapolis in a special car which she has made her home since the sale of her properties in the east, and in which she will live through her prssent concert tour. Her program will include a number of songs by modern writers, Mr. Horgan said.

"She constantly searches for new or forgotten songs, and her programs are models of their kind for unconventional yet sustained interest," he said.

SKIN DISEASE

Any skin disease such as acne, eczema, psoriasis, etc, is very unpleasant, but if the organs of elimination are working properly there will be no skin disease. If there is subluxation (displacement) of the vertebrae (small bones of the spine), causing nerve pressure and preventing the vital force from flowing freely to the kidneys, the latter will not function properly and the excretion will be thrown off by the pores of the skin, causing eczema and similar disorders. Minneapolis Civic & Commerce Association Expresses Thanks and Grateful to Be Host

More recognition is coming in from Minneapolis, from the fact that the Brainerd Business Men escorted their farmer friends to the National Dairy Show held at the state fair grounds during the week of Oct. 12th.

P. M. Zakariasen, who headed the committee on the Brainerd tour, wrote a letter of thanks to the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association for the many courtesies they extended to the local delegation. A welcoming committee from the Association met the Brainerd party at the Minneapolis city limits and assisted in escorting them to the fair grounds.

In answer to Mr. Zakariasen's letter, Jamse S. Cady, secretary of the Civic and Commerce Association, writes as follows:

"It was mighty kind and thoughtful of you to write us as you did in your letter of the 14th.

"We were proud to have been your host even for the brief period that you were with us and sincerely hope that your party enjoyed themselves and feel that the day spent at the Dairy Exposition was well worth while.

"We hope that we will again have an opportunity to meet the people of your community".

FARRAR TO SING IN MINNEAPOLIS NOV. 1

Minneapolis, Oct. 26—Geraldine Farrar, "the gorgeous Gerry" of the Metropolitan Opera company, who has definitely retired from the operatic stage to devote her time to concert work, will sing in Minneapolis Nov. 1, opening a "master artists course" arranged under the management of R. J. Horgan.

She is to be folowed on Feb. 21, by Sergei Rachmaninov, and on March 21 by Fritz Kreisler, Mr. Horgan said today.

Farrar will come to Minneapolis in a special car which she has made her home since the sale of her properties in the east, and in which she will live through her prssent concert tour. Her program will include a number of songs by modern writers, Mr. Horgan said.

"She constantly searches for new or forgotten songs, and her programs are models of their kind for unconventional yet sustained interest," he said.

SKIN DISEASE

Any skin disease such as acne, eczema, psoriasis, etc, is very unpleasant, but if the organs of elimination are working properly there will be no skin disease. If there is subluxation (displacement) of the vertebrae (small bones of the spine), causing nerve pressure and preventing the vital force from flowing freely to the kidneys, the latter will not function properly and the excretion will be thrown off by the pores of the skin, causing eczema and similar disorders. TRY CHIROPRACTIC VERTEBRAL ADJUSTMENTS for skin trouble and keep your eliminatory organs "up to par."

ERMA JOHNSON'S EUROPEAN TRIP

Describes Her Experiences as One of the Good Will Delegates Touring France

7 DAYS CROSSING THE OCCEAN

Interesting Cross-Sections of French Life, Scenes and Experiences are Given

The Dispatch gives publicity to this series of travel sketches penned by Miss Erma Johnson who was elected one of the "Good Will" delegates, which party toured France.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 27th, 1922.
Dear Friends:

The peasants we passed greeted us enthusiastically, and several times when we had to stop on account of engine trouble or to repair a tire, those living nearby brought us flowers and fruit from their gardens. At one place they brought us cider to drink.

The first night we stopped at Rouen, which was once the capital of the Dukedom of Normandy. It was here that Joan of Arc was burned in 1431. There were many, many points of historic interest in Rouen, but I will not attempt to describe them.

Two nights, we spent at Mont Saint Michel, a high rocky point of land which, at high tide, is entirely surrounded by the sea. On the summit is an old Abbey that was built in the eleventh century and which is now preserved because of its architectural and historical interest. There are many curio shops bordering the winding streets and six hundred steps leading up to the Abbey. The abbey itself is like the castles we have read about in fairy stories—deep dungeons where the wicked king might have kept his prisoners and high towers from which the captice princess might have signaled to her prince charming. The doors were heavy studded ones and the keys a foot long. It is a most fascinating place.

We lunched at Granville and spent an afternoon at Saint Malo, two famous seaside resorts, where we saw some of the fashionable French people. The beaches were lovely and we all wished it were possible to spend a few days there. A few of the girls went in swimming at Saint Malo, but it was too cold for enjoyment.

Soon after leaving Mont Saint Michel, we came to Brittany. As it happened, the people were celebrating the "Feast of the Blessed Virgin", and we passed many processions of priests; altar boys carrying lighted candles, women in black dresses and stiffly starched white bonnets, and men in their Sunday best, on their way to the little roadside shrines.

In Brittany, we saw a great many old chateaus, and visited eight of them. One that we visited had been built by a French king for a hunting "lodge". It had four hundred rooms and the stables were large enough to accomodate twelve hundred horses. Somehow, it didn't remind me very much of the hunting lodges I have seen in Minnesota. Most of the chateaux that we saw had some of the original furnishings in them, but even without them they were interesting with their hand carved panels, huge fire places, circular staircases, etc. The owner of the Chateau at Langeais, the only occupied chateau that we were in, invited us to tea, and took us all through her wonderful home. Before we left, she presented to each of us, a booklet containing the history of the chateau, and in my book she wrote the following:

"In 1791 Anne of Brittany was welcomed here as Queen of France and today, August 18th, 1922, we welcome you as Queen of Generosity and Good Will".

We arrived at Tours late in the afternoon, after a long dusty ride. As we were expected to attend a tea at the Hotel de Ville in the middle of the afternoon, we had to go there directly tired and dusty as we were. The town paper must have heralded our coming, for the approach to the Hotel de Ville was crowded with people eager to see the Americans. We were ushered into a beautiful room, at one end of which were set the tea tables, all decorated with flowers—a bouquet of roses for each of us. After we were seated, the townspeople were admitted, and they stood around us to hear the speeches (and watch us eat).

All of the men who spoke to us at these various occasions, asked us to tell our friends in America that France was not a military nation, that she loved peace as much as do the Americans, but that, being situated as she is, she has to be prepared against invasion or be wiped out; that France was not asking, nor does she want, charity. All that she wants is that the Germans be made to pay the indemnity that is justly due France. They also said that they hoped that the friendship which existed between America and France in the days of Washington and Lafayette would always continue to exist.

On August 20th, we returned to Paris, where we spent the remaining nine days. We were sorry to come back to Paris, for we knew that that was the beginning of the end of our wonderful journey.

Practically every minute of our time there had been planned for, leaving just a few mornings for special visits, shopping and resting. As things were very high in Paris, I did more window shopping than actual buying, but even that was a joy for the shops are so attractive. It was great fun trying to making ourselves understood by the salesmen. We became so accustomed to dramatizing that one of the girls who wished to buy shoe polish—without even attempting to ask for it—started vigorously to polish her shoes. The clerk watched her patiently and then said "Does madame wish shoe polish?" Another day, one of the girls who tried every way to make the man understand that she wanted some ice, as a last resort, got up and skated around the room. She got the ice.

It was quite a novelty for us to sit and eat at the little tables on the sidewalks. One day, I asked for a lemonade. The waiter brought me a lemon, a lemon squeezer, sugar, water and a pail of ice, and I had to make it myself. At least I knew what was in it..

We visited Les Invalides, seeing Napoleon's tomb and a museum devoted entirely to war relics and personal belongings of Napoleon: the Pantheon de la Guerre with its immense painting of the Allies and the parts they took in the World War; the Louvre, famous for having the original Venus de Milo, the Winged Victory, Mona Liza, and hundreds of other notable works of art; and Notre Dame Cathedral. At the Arc de Triomphe, we held a service over the grave of the Unknown Soldier and decorated it with flowers. People of every nation visit this grave, and it is always covered with flowers.

ALL MINNESOTA HAS BEEN INVITED

Completion of Faribault-Little Falls Paving to be Celebrated in Little Falls

ON THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9TH

Parade to Be Three Miles Long, 10 Bands, Floats, Speakers, Entertainers, Etc.

All Minnesota is invited to Little Falls to attend the pavement celebration. According to an article published by the Little Falls Transcript here is what is in store for Brainerd visitors:

On Thursday, November 9, the good road boosters of Minnesota, will hold a celebration and an old time get-together at Little Falls. This will be held for the purpose of celebrating the completion of the longest strip of paving in the state of Minnesota, from Faribault to Little Falls, a distance of 175 miles.

Entertainment will be provided for all. The program will start at 11 a. m. with a three-mile parade that will include 10 bands, floats, decorated cars, 1500 school children and 1,000 automobiles. The parade will be headed by Governor Preus and his staff.

There will be speaking early in the afternoon by Governor Preus, Lieut. Governor Collins, Senator Frank B. Kellogg, Mayor Nelson of St. Paul, Mayor Leach of Minneapolis, A. H. French, general manager of the Jefferson highway, and other prominent men.

The Twin Cities are planning on sending a large delegation of prominent business men to help celebrate this great occasion. All of the towns and cities along the Jefferson highway and throughout Central Minnesota are planning to send a live bunch of good road enthusiasts to Little Falls on that day.

Little Falls extends a cordial invitation to everyone to come and spend the day with the livest bunch of good road boosters in the state of Minnesota.

Surprise Party

Friends of Ruby L. Wolhart perpetrated a pleasant surprise party on Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. Wolhart's 22nd birthday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wolhart.

The evening was spent in music and games. A comedy act was presented by George Wolhart appearing as "Dat Darky", much to the amusement of the entire company. Refreshments were served, bringing to a close a most delightful evening.

Ruby Wolhart has recently returned from an extended western trip in which he visited numerous Pacific cities, Alaska and Northern Canada looking after business interests that he is representing.

Judge Its Quality—Then Price

There's something alluring about the Studebaker Special-Six Sedan.

You notice it when you pass one on the street. It grows on you as you examine the car's details. It becomes even more pronounced when you take the wheel and drive it.

No wonder the Spezial-Six Sedan carries such an appeal! Its beauty of line, finish and appointments fascinates you. The delightful harmony of color in the upholstery, the completeness of the appointments and the soft carpeting afford real elegance—and at a new low price.

The body is a striking example of the handicraft of Studebaker artisans. Built in Studebaker plants where the coachmaker's art has been handed down from father to son for more than two generations.

It is mounted on the same dependable Special-Six chassis that has added new fame to the name Studebaker wherever cars are known.

Compare its appearance, its endurance records, its comfort, its equipment and its recognized reliability with any car within hundreds of dollars of its price. Judge it on quality first—then price—because price alone is no indication of its intrinsic value.

You can have confidence in the quality of Studebaker cars—in the 70 years of business success and manufacturing integrity back of them—and in the sterling dollar-for-dollar value built into them.

The name Studebaker on your car insures satisfaction!

We were ushered into a beautiful room, at one end of which were set the tea tables, all decorated with flowers—a bouquet of roses for each of us. After we were seated, the townspeople were admitted, and they stood around us to hear the speeches (and watch us eat).

All of the men who spoke to us at these various occasions, asked us to tell our friends in America that France was not a military nation, that she loved peace as much as do the Americans, but that, being situated as she is, she has to be prepared against invasion or be wiped out; that France was not asking, nor does she want, charity. All that she wants is that the Germans be made to pay the indemnity that is justly due France. They also said that they hoped that the friendship which existed between America and France in the days of Washington and Lafayette would always continue to exist.

On August 20th, we returned to Paris, where we spent the remaining nine days. We were sorry to come back to Paris, for we knew that that was the beginning of the end of our wonderful journey.

Practically every minute of our time there had been planned for, leaving just a few mornings for special visits, shopping and resting. As things were very high in Paris, I did more window shopping than actual buying, but even that was a joy for the shops are so attractive. It was great fun trying to making ourselves understood by the salesmen. We became so accustomed to dramatizing that one of the girls who wished to buy shoe polish—without even attempting to ask for it—started vigorously to polish her shoes. The clerk watched her patiently and then said "Does madame wish shoe polish?" Another day, one of the girls who tried every way to make the man understand that she wanted some ice, as a last resort, got up and skated around the room. She got the ice.

It was quite a novelty for us to sit and eat at the little tables on the sidewalks. One day, I asked for a lemonade. The waiter brought me a lemon, a lemon squeezer, sugar, water and a pail of ice, and I had to make it myself. At least I knew what was in it..

We visited Les Invalides, seeing Napoleon's tomb and a museum devoted entirely to war relics and personal belongings of Napoleon: the Pantheon de la Guerre with its immense painting of the Allies and the parts they took in the World War; the Louvre, famous for having the original Venus de Milo, the Winged Victory, Mona Liza, and hundreds of other notable works of art; and Notre Dame Cathedral. At the Arc de Triomphe, we held a service over the grave of the Unknown Soldier and decorated it with flowers. People of every nation visit this grave, and it is always covered with flowers.

ALL MINNESOTA HAS BEEN INVITED

Completion of Faribault-Little Falls Paving to be Celebrated in Little Falls

ON THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9TH

Parade to Be Three Miles Long, 10 Bands, Floats, Speakers, Entertainers, Etc.

All Minnesota is invited to Little Falls to attend the pavement celebration. According to an article published by the Little Falls Transcript here is what is in store for Brainerd visitors:

On Thursday, November 9, the good road boosters of Minnesota, will hold a celebration and an old time get-together at Little Falls. This will be held for the purpose of celebrating the completion of the longest strip of paving in the state of Minnesota, from Faribault to Little Falls, a distance of 175 miles.

Entertainment will be provided for all. The program will start at 11 a. m. with a three-mile parade that will include 10 bands, floats, decorated cars, 1500 school children and 1,000 automobiles. The parade will be headed by Governor Preus and his staff.

There will be speaking early in the afternoon by Governor Preus, Lieut. Governor Collins, Senator Frank B. Kellogg, Mayor Nelson of St. Paul, Mayor Leach of Minneapolis, A. H. French, general manager of the Jefferson highway, and other prominent men.

The Twin Cities are planning on sending a large delegation of prominent business men to help celebrate this great occasion. All of the towns and cities along the Jefferson highway and throughout Central Minnesota are planning to send a live bunch of good road enthusiasts to Little Falls on that day.

Little Falls extends a cordial invitation to everyone to come and spend the day with the livest bunch of good road boosters in the state of Minnesota.

Surprise Party

Friends of Ruby L. Wolhart perpetrated a pleasant surprise party on Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. Wolhart's 22nd birthday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wolhart.

The evening was spent in music and games. A comedy act was presented by George Wolhart appearing as "Dat Darky", much to the amusement of the entire company. Refreshments were served, bringing to a close a most delightful evening.

Ruby Wolhart has recently returned from an extended western trip in which he visited numerous Pacific cities, Alaska and Northern Canada looking after business interests that he is representing.

BE READY WHEN WINTER COMES

It is needless to review the coal situation today. You well know that it behooves everyone to lay in a supply for the coming winter. Right now we have "ACME SOOTLESS" furnace coal in stock in a quantity that can care for your early needs.

"ACME SOOTLESS" Furnace Coal is clean and bright like anthracite; it is a real comfort to whoever has to keep the house warm; it starts quickly; it keeps the fire overnight; it gives out heat a plenty; makes no clinkers. Properly burned it makes but little light-colored smoke and does not fill the house and cellar with coal dust.

You won't find a better furnace coal than ACME. Let's have your order today.

Judge Its Quality—Then Price

There's something alluring about the Studebaker Special-Six Sedan.

You notice it when you pass one on the street. It grows on you as you examine the car's details. It becomes even more pronounced when you take the wheel and drive it.

No wonder the Special-Six Sedan carries such an appeal! Its beauty of line, finish and appointments fascinates you. The delightful harmony of color in the upholstery, the completeness of the appointments and the soft carpeting afford real elegance—and at a new low price.

The body is a striking example of the handicraft of Studebaker artisans. Built in Studebaker plants where the coachmaker's art has been handed down from father to son for more than two generations.

It is mounted on the same dependable Special-Six chassis that has added new fame to the name Studebaker wherever cars are known.

Compare its appearance, its endurance records, its comfort, its equipment and its recognized reliability with any car within hundreds of dollars of its price. Judge it on quality first—then price—because price alone is no indication of its intrinsic value.

You can have confidence in the quality of Studebaker cars—in the 70 years of business success and manufacturing integrity back of them—and in the sterling dollar-for-dollar value built into them.

The name Studebaker on your car insures satisfaction!

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO

THE advantages that would result from the adoption of amendment number two are worthy of serious consideration on the part of the voters of this state. A desire to increase the funds of the state, by placing an occupational tax on the valuation of all ores mined or produced within the limits of this commonwealth, appeals to people until they carefully consider some of the disadvantages that may result from the collection of such a tax. The fact that 50 per cent of the proposed tax is to go into the general revenue fund of the state, 40 per cent to the permanent school fund, and 10 per cent to the permanent university fund, immediately impresses a citizen with the thought that the objects to which the money is to be devoted are good. The inference that is likely to follow this conclusion is that the tax itself must be a good thing for the state.

If the money can be collected without any disadvantage to the state, the proposal is worthy of commendation and the approval of the voters at the polls. Possible disadvantages, however, must be considered. If this tax, which is in addition to all other taxes at present levied upon the mining or production of ores in this state, leads to a cessation of mining developments in Minnesota it will not have a very beneficial effect even though it bring large returns to the funds benefited. It has been frequently said by those who claim to be advised of the facts of the mining industry in Minnesota that ore is at present carrying as high a tax as it can carry if production is to be continued at a normal or increased rate. If an additional tax is levied against the industry, it is said by these critics of the proposed amendment, ore will be secured from other fields and the production of Minnesota mines will be correspondingly reduced. If this proved to be true the passing of the amendment would be after the fashion of the person in the old story who killed the goose that laid the golden egg.

There is another aspect of the subject that deserves attention. There is a tendency to think that by passing taxes over to large industries the tax burden of the individual will be removed. Without any doubt this is true, as has been proved in Minnesota since the tonnage tax was levied against the mining industry. But while it is true that a heavy tax upon the production of ore may reduce the tax that the individual is required to pay towards the upkeep of the state and its institutions, the saving is more apparent than real. Able students of tax questions assert that such a tax is added to the cost of production of the finished product and passed on to the ultimate consumer. In passing on such a tax, the producer and manufacturer are certain to pass on sufficient to secure a safe margin, with the result that more than the actual amount of the tax is paid by the consumers who purchase the product. It therefore follows that because iron ore is the base of all mechanical contrivances that are in turn the means of production, when the cost of these is increased the cost of everything else is raised. Thus the farmer, while able to secure but a small return for his produce, is still asked to pay a high price for machinery needed on his farm. In whatever way a tax is levied it is paid by the people in the end. Accordingly what is saved in the purchasing of commodities may be expended as taxes without any real increase in outlay. Taxes are like the Australian boomerang, they may be thrown in any direction but, in the end, they always come back to the person who does the throwing.

THE TOURIST AMERICANIZER

SECTIONALISM, what there has been of it in the United States, has always been based upon east and west lines. This has been so primarily because the proximity of our seaboard colonies in the beginning left room only for westward development. The Mason and Dixon Line, which for so long a time played an important part in our political, social and economic life, had its beginnings in this east-to-west movement of Virginia and our Southern colonists into the backwoods of Tennessee, Kentucky and the Gulf States.

The Appalachian Mountains had much to do with this western development. This barrier forced rivers to flow east or west. These streams, such for instance as the Ohio River, supplied transportation for America's early Middle West settlers, and their courses naturally determined many sectional boundaries.

The entrance of the steam locomotive in America accelerated a westward movement that was now a habit. Lines were constructed along the latitudes and out of conformity to the natural geographic relations of north and south. To this day Montanans travel by rail to Nebraska in order to get to Colorado. Minnesotans go to Chicago to get to Arkansas. As a nation we have buided strong in an east and west direction, but we have encouraged sectionalism in so doing. The tendency to a north and south direction has been latent and the Americanization of the land has thus been delayed.

Now comes a new movement to change the course of history. It is the motoring tourist from the South bent on a family journey to the North. The thing has great possibilities in the making of America. In the Mississippi Valley there is reason to believe that a valley consciousness is being developed on north and south lines. The tourist from Louisiana, Missouri, Kansas and neighbor states is spending his summers in Minnesota. The New Orleans man is telling the citizen of Brainerd what's on his mind and vice versa. The motorist from Kansas is chatting with the garage man in Iowa, and each is learning about the other.

This is a new experience in America, this getting together of North and South. It has its blessings sectionally, socially and economically. If the spirit that is being developed in the north and south movement of the Mississippi Valley is any criterion, it points to a tendency that will gradually wipe out the narrowness of old sectionalisms, and supplant it with a finer nationalism than has hitherto prevailed.—Minneapolis Journal.

THE STATE OF THE ENGLISH MIND

A CAREFUL reading of the signs of the times suggests that the people of England are tired. They passed through a war of four years duration to find themselves confronted by problems as harassing as the problems raised by the war. Passing into the state of peace under the same leadership that carried them through the struggle with the central powers, they found that the personnel of the cabinet of the coalition government intended to attempt the restoration of Europe. In this attempt the British government has been very busily engaged, sometimes at the expense of domestic affairs. Then came the threat of a Turkish invasion of Europe, with all the possibilities of a disturbance of European affairs that might issue in warfare, and in accordance with its European policy the British government at a heavy cost stepped in and checked the advance of the Turk pending the meeting of a conference to take up the demands of the leader of the Turkish forces.

The attitude of the coalition towards the situation in the Near East was distasteful to many in the coalition government and to the labor party; and, taken together with other unpopular attitudes, the cumulative weight of these led to the retirement of the premier.

A return to a conservative government suggests that the people of England are tired. The war and the events following the war have been wearing on the people until at last they are tired of it all and want a rest. If the election of November 15 returns a strong conservative majority this summing up of the situation will be fully borne out; for the conservative party in Britain is composed of those elements in the nation's life that are opposed to change. The party is true to its name, it is conservative, and there will be no startling progressive movements initiated by its membership.

However disappointing this may be to some, perhaps, in the end, it will make for the good of the country. There has not been a time since the signing of the armistice for undisturbed consideration of the grave problems resulting from the war, but rather a rush from one issue to another and from one conference to the next. During the conservative administration there will be time for the liberal and progressive leadership to catch its breath and map out a program for the future, when with renewed strength and a definite purpose it may go forward in its work.

BRAINERD'S TROUBLE MAKERS

AN address was delivered in Brainerd on Sunday evening by Dr. H. C. Swearingen, of St. Paul, which, if passed on to all of our citizens, might help to check those manifestations of bad citizenship that are becoming altogether too prevalent in our city. In the course of the address, which ably presented the extent of individual liberty; the terms "law and order," that have been used so often recently and sometimes abused were not paraded before the audience; but the principles that must underlie any established government were most ably presented.

The speaker showed that Robinson Crusoe, living on an island alone, could do as he liked, live as he liked, eat all there was to eat, drink all the milk supplied by the goats, but that as soon as his good man Friday appeared on the scene Robinson Crusoe could not claim the privileges that he had previously enjoyed. There was then another to think of who also had rights which inevitably reduced the rights enjoyed when he was the sole resident of the island.

This principle was abundantly illustrated by the speaker who showed that natural right permits one to fire off a high-powered gun in the middle of one of our busy streets while civil right restricts this natural right and prohibits such an act. In prohibiting this act civil law does not do so for the purpose of restricting natural right but for the purpose of protecting the man who might claim the right to exercise it from another who in claiming the same right might shoot him.

Brainerd is up against a situation where the community at large is being disgraced by the actions of individuals who do not represent the best people of the city. (In using the term best people we are not thinking of any class or section but of the better element of all these, for each section has its kinds of folks.) The trouble makers do not represent the leaders of the strike in Brainerd, nor the personnel out on strike in general. They represent an unruly, undisciplined crowd which evidently will not listen to the voices of the leaders of the shopmen and which refuses to consider the disgrace that their actions bring upon the strikers and upon the community at large.

Intelligent strikers are agreed that such activities serve no useful purpose, and that their tendency is to defeat the ends of the strikers themselves. None of the citizens of Brainerd, except perhaps this rowdy element, wishes to see this city placed under the control of large forces of marshals or under martial law with the militia in charge of a situation that has got beyond the control of the normal processes of law enforcement. It is high time that in some way these elements were restrained from bringing disgrace upon the strikers and the community at large.

GERMANY MAY QUIT

GERMANY has not revealed the same spirit that she showed in the war in attempting to meet the bill which the conference of Versailles presented to her. Reports indicate that even Chancellor Wirth, who in the past has stood for the payment of reparations, has faced about and has recently reiterated the popular slogan, "First bread, then reparations."

Some middle course must be pursued in dealing with Germany. It would be folly on the part of the allies of the late war to drive Germany to Bolshevism by a too heavy demand; but, on the other hand, Germany must not be allowed to waive payment for the terrible suffering that resulted to the nations from the war, for the commencement of which she was so largely responsible. Maudling sentimentality must not be allowed to free Germany from paying the price of her wrongdoing. Even extreme advocates of the policy of offering the other cheek to the enemy must not forget that the great Teacher told of a man who, when cast into prison, would not come out until he had paid the uttermost farthing. However, it would be well for the nations to help Germany to pay up.

HELPING THE FARMERS

THE proposed amendment No. 1 which has for its purpose the development of the agricultural resources of the state by authorizing the lending of money and credit of the state to the people upon real estate security should have the backing of those who feel that the farmers of Minnesota ought to be aided, in every possible way, in developing their holdings. There will be no general prosperity until the farmer has been brought out of the unfortunate condition in which he now struggles to a place where he is secured in the operation of his farm. Money ought to be at the disposal of the farmer at a reasonable rate of interest for the purpose proposed in this amendment.

This amendment if carried will help to put the framer back on his feet and when he is started on the road to prosperity the people of Minnesota will prosper with him. What is of benefit t othe farmer is an asset to the state.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Here's Grandmother's Recipe to Darken and Beautify Faded Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. Rheumatism

A Remarkable Home Treatment Given by One Who Had It

In the year of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Sub-acute Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who are thus afflicted know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, but such relief as I obtained was only temporary. Finally, I found a treatment that cured me completely, and such a pitiful condition has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, even bedridden, some of them seventy to eighty years old, and the results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of muscular and sub-acute (swelling at the joints) rheumatism, to try the great value of my improved "Home Treatment" for its remarkablehe alingpower. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of getting rid of such forms of rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENTS— Cost $5.75. Authorized by and for Hilding Swanson, Brainerd, Minn.

RE-ELECT

HILDING SWANSON

To The

SENATE

From

Crow Wing and Morrison Counties, Minnesota

Senator from 1919 to 1923, and was Representative from 1917 to 1919.

SWANSON'S PLATFORM

I FAVOR:

1. Present Primary Law
2. Uniform State School Tax.
3. Local Control of Public Utilities.
4. School Aid from Railway Gross Earnings Tax.
5. Complete Equality of Men and Women in Industries.
6. Farm Markets and Standard Prices for Farm Products.
7. State Rural Credit Law, Income Tax, Cement Plant and Civil Service.
8. Lower Taxes on Improvements and Higher Taxes on Undeveloped Lands.
9. Amendment to Trunk Highway System to include connecting Highways and adjustment of Auto License Law and present control.
10. Eight-hour day, Minimum Wage, Pensions for old and disabled, reasonable amendments to Workmen's Compensation law and Labor Bills.

I AM OPPOSED TO:

11. State Constabulary.
12. State Pre-Primary Convention Law.
13. Brooks-Coleman Street Railway Bill.

HISTORY

Hilding Swanson has lived in this District since 1888. Since 13 years old has been engaged in various manual and clerical occupations at the saw mill and railway shops, and worked his way thru school at Valparaiso (Scientific 1908) (Academic 1909) and Yale (Law 1912.) Was Representative from 1917 to 1919 and now Senator from this District. Practiced law at Brainerd over ten years.

Your candidate fully supported his platforms of 1916 and 1918, and has voted and supported every labor, farmer, child welfare, and equal suffrage measure, as well as every measure in favor of business and industrial interests, except those against public policy, during the four sessions of the Legislature in which he served, and he believes he has accomplished something valuable for his District.

He has championed the cause of the common people during his term as public official and believes his record will show that he has faithfully served all of the people of his District, without fear or favor, and he will continue to do so if re-elected.

He stands squarely on his record for Re-election and believes his legislative and industrial experience better qualifies him to serve his District and State.

If an additional tax is levied against the industry, it is said by these critics of the proposed amendment, ore will be secured from other fields and the production of Minnesota mines will be correspondingly reduced. If this proved to be true the passing of the amendment would be after the fashion of the person in the old story who killed the goose that laid the golden egg.

There is another aspect of the subject that deserves attention. There is a tendency to think that by passing taxes over to large industries the tax burden of the individual will be removed. Without any doubt this is true, as has been proved in Minnesota since the tonnage tax was levied against the mining industry. But while it is true that a heavy tax upon the production of ore may reduce the tax that the individual is required to pay towards the upkeep of the state and its institutions, the saving is more apparent than real. Able students of tax questions assert that such a tax is added to the cost of production of the finished product and passed on to the ultimate consumer. In passing on such a tax, the producer and manufacturer are certain to pass on sufficient to secure a safe margin, with the result that more than the actual amount of the tax is paid by the consumers who purchase the product. It therefore follows that because iron ore is the base of all mechanical contrivances that are in turn the means of production, when the cost of these is increased the cost of everything else is raised. Thus the farmer, while able to secure but a small return for his produce, is still asked to pay a high price for machinery needed on his farm. In whatever way a tax is levied it is paid by the people in the end. Accordingly what is saved in the purchasing of commodities may be expended as taxes without any real increase in outlay. Taxes are like the Australian boomerang, they may be thrown in any direction but, in the end, they always come back to the person who does the throwing.

THE TOURIST AMERICANIZER

SECTIONALISM, what there has been of it in the United States, has always been based upon east and west lines. This has been so primarily because the proximity of our seaboard colonies in the beginning left room only for westward development. The Mason and Dixon Line, which for so long a time played an important part in our political, social and economic life, had its beginnings in this east-to-west movement of Virginia and our Southern colonists into the backwoods of Tennessee, Kentucky and the Gulf States.

The Appalachian Mountains had much to do with this western development. This barrier forced rivers to flow east or west. These streams, such for instance as the Ohio River, supplied transportation for America's early Middle West settlers, and their courses naturally determined many sectional boundaries.

The entrance of the steam locomotive in America accelerated a westward movement that was now a habit. Lines were constructed along the latitudes and out of conformity to the natural geographic relations of north and south. To this day Montanans travel by rail to Nebraska in order to get to Colorado. Minnesotans go to Chicago to get to Arkansas. As a nation we have buided strong in an east and west direction, but we have encouraged sectionalism in so doing. The tendency to a north and south direction has been latent and the Americanization of the land has thus been delayed.

Now comes a new movement to change the course of history. It is the motoring tourist from the South bent on a family journey to the North. The thing has great possibilities in the making of America. In the Mississippi Valley there is reason to believe that a valley consciousness is being developed on north and south lines. The tourist from Louisiana, Missouri, Kansas and neighbor states is spending his summers in Minnesota. The New Orleans man is telling the citizen of Brainerd what's on his mind and vice versa. The motorist from Kansas is chatting with the garage man in Iowa, and each is learning about the other.

This is a new experience in America, this getting together of North and South. It has its blessings sectionally, socially and economically. If the spirit that is being developed in the north and south movement of the Mississippi Valley is any criterion, it points to a tendency that will gradually wipe out the narrowness of old sectionalisms, and supplant it with a finer nationalism than has hitherto prevailed.—Minneapolis Journal.

THE STATE OF THE ENGLISH MIND

A CAREFUL reading of the signs of the times suggests that the people of England are tired. They passed through a war of four years duration to find themselves confronted by problems as harassing as the problems raised by the war. Passing into the state of peace under the same leadership that carried them through the struggle with the central powers, they found that the personnel of the cabinet of the coalition government intended to attempt the restoration of Europe. In this attempt the British government has been very busily engaged, sometimes at the expense of domestic affairs. Then came the threat of a Turkish invasion of Europe, with all the possibilities of a disturbance of European affairs that might issue in warfare, and in accordance with its European policy the British government at a heavy cost stepped in and checked the advance of the Turk pending the meeting of a conference to take up the demands of the leader of the Turkish forces.

The attitude of the coalition towards the situation in the Near East was distasteful to many in the coalition government and to the labor party; and, taken together with other unpopular attitudes, the cumulative weight of these led to the retirement of the premier.

A return to a conservative government suggests that the people of England are tired. The war and the events following the war have been wearing on the people until at last they are tired of it all and want a rest. If the election of November 15 returns a strong conservative majority this summing up of the situation will be fully borne out; for the conservative party in Britain is composed of those elements in the nation's life that are opposed to change. The party is true to its name, it is conservative, and there will be no startling progressive movements initiated by its membership.

However disappointing this may be to some, perhaps, in the end, it will make for the good of the country. There has not been a time since the signing of the armistice for undisturbed consideration of the grave problems resulting from the war, but rather a rush from one issue to another and from one conference to the next. During the conservative administration there will be time for the liberal and progressive leadership to catch its breath and map out a program for the future, when with renewed strength and a definite purpose it may go forward in its work.

BRAINERD'S TROUBLE MAKERS

AN address was delivered in Brainerd on Sunday evening by Dr. H. C. Swearingen, of St. Paul, which, if passed on to all of our citizens, might help to check those manifestations of bad citizenship that are becoming altogether too prevalent in our city. In the course of the address, which ably presented the extent of individual liberty; the terms "law and order," that have been used so often recently and sometimes abused were not paraded before the audience; but the principles that must underlie any established government were most ably presented.

The speaker showed that Robinson Crusoe, living on an island alone, could do as he liked, live as he liked, eat all there was to eat, drink all the milk supplied by the goats, but that as soon as his good man Friday appeared on the scene Robinson Crusoe could not claim the privileges that he had previously enjoyed. There was then another to think of who also had rights which inevitably reduced the rights enjoyed when he was the sole resident of the island.

This principle was abundantly illustrated by the speaker who showed that natural right permits one to fire off a high-powered gun in the middle of one of our busy streets while civil right restricts this natural right and prohibits such an act. In prohibiting this act civil law does not do so for the purpose of restricting natural right but for the purpose of protecting the man who might claim the right to exercise it from another who in claiming the same right might shoot him.

Brainerd is up against a situation where the community at large is being disgraced by the actions of individuals who do not represent the best people of the city. (In using the term best people we are not thinking of any class or section but of the better element of all these, for each section has its kinds of folks.) The trouble makers do not represent the leaders of the strike in Brainerd, nor the personnel out on strike in general. They represent an unruly, undisciplined crowd which evidently will not listen to the voices of the leaders of the shopmen and which refuses to consider the disgrace that their actions bring upon the strikers and upon the community at large.

Intelligent strikers are agreed that such activities serve no useful purpose, and that their tendency is to defeat the ends of the strikers themselves. None of the citizens of Brainerd, except perhaps this rowdy element, wishes to see this city placed under the control of large forces of marshals or under martial law with the militia in charge of a situation that has got beyond the control of the normal processes of law enforcement. It is high time that in some way these elements were restrained from bringing disgrace upon the strikers and the community at large.

GERMANY MAY QUIT

GERMANY has not revealed the same spirit that she showed in the war in attempting to meet the bill which the conference of Versailles presented to her. Reports indicate that even Chancellor Wirth, who in the past has stood for the payment of reparations, has faced about and has recently reiterated the popular slogan, "First bread, then reparations."

Some middle course must be pursued in dealing with Germany. It would be folly on the part of the allies of the late war to drive Germany to Bolshevism by a too heavy demand; but, on the other hand, Germany must not be allowed to waive payment for the terrible suffering that resulted to the nations from the war, for the commencement of which she was so largely responsible. Maudling sentimentality must not be allowed to free Germany from paying the price of her wrongdoing. Even extreme advocates of the policy of offering the other cheek to the enemy must not forget that the great Teacher told of a man who, when cast into prison, would not come out until he had paid the uttermost farthing. However, it would be well for the nations to help Germany to pay up.

HELPING THE FARMERS

THE proposed amendment No. 1 which has for its purpose the development of the agricultural resources of the state by authorizing the lending of money and credit of the state to the people upon real estate security should have the backing of those who feel that the farmers of Minnesota ought to be aided, in every possible way, in developing their holdings. There will be no general prosperity until the farmer has been brought out of the unfortunate condition in which he now struggles to a place where he is secured in the operation of his farm. Money ought to be at the disposal of the farmer at a reasonable rate of interest for the purpose proposed in this amendment.

This amendment if carried will help to put the framer back on his feet and when he is started on the road to prosperity the people of Minnesota will prosper with him. What is of benefit t othe farmer is an asset to the state.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Here's Grandmother's Recipe to Darken and Beautify Faded Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. Rheumatism

A Remarkable Home Treatment Given by One Who Had It

In the year of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Sub-acute Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who are thus afflicted know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, but such relief as I obtained was only temporary. Finally, I found a treatment that cured me completely, and such a pitiful condition has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, even bedridden, some of them seventy to eighty years old, and the results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of muscular and sub-acute (swelling at the joints) rheumatism, to try the great value of my improved "Home Treatment" for its remarkablehe alingpower. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of getting rid of such forms of rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair Why suffer any longer when relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENTS— Cost $5.75. Authorized by and for Hilding Swanson, Brainerd, Minn.

RE-ELECT

HILDING SWANSON

To The

SENATE

From

Crow Wing and Morrison Counties, Minnesota

Senator from 1919 to 1923, and was Representative from 1917 to 1919.

SWANSON'S PLATFORM

I FAVOR:

1. Present Primary Law
2. Uniform State School Tax.
3. Local Control of Public Utilities.
4. School Aid from Railway Gross Earnings Tax.
5. Complete Equality of Men and Women in Industries.
6. Farm Markets and Standard Prices for Farm Products.
7. State Rural Credit Law, Income Tax, Cement Plant and Civil Service.
8. Lower Taxes on Improvements and Higher Taxes on Undeveloped Lands.
9. Amendment to Trunk Highway System to include connecting Highways and adjustment of Auto License Law and present control.
10. Eight-hour day, Minimum Wage, Pensions for old and disabled, reasonable amendments to Workmen's Compensation law and Labor Bills.

I AM OPPOSED TO:

11. State Constabulary.
12. State Pre-Primary Convention Law.
13. Brooks-Coleman Street Railway Bill.

HISTORY

Hilding Swanson has lived in this District since 1888. Since 13 years old has been engaged in various manual and clerical occupations at the saw mill and railway shops, and worked his way thru school at Valparaiso (Scientific 1908) (Academic 1909) and Yale (Law 1912.) Was Representative from 1917 to 1919 and now Senator from this District. Practiced law at Brainerd over ten years.

Your candidate fully supported his platforms of 1916 and 1918, and has voted and supported every labor, farmer, child welfare, and equal suffrage measure, as well as every measure in favor of business and industrial interests, except those against public policy, during the four sessions of the Legislature in which he served, and he believes he has accomplished something valuable for his District.

He has championed the cause of the common people during his term as public official and believes his record will show that he has faithfully served all of the people of his District, without fear or favor, and he will continue to do so if re-elected.

He stands squarely on his record for Re-election and believes his legislative and industrial experience better qualifies him to serve his District and State.

PUBLIC MARKET FOR BRAINERD

Was Discussed at Length at the Weekly Meeting of the Lions Club in Brainerd

HONOR GUESTS ENTERTAINED

Attorney Walter F. Wieland and T. B. Brusegaard, President and Secretary of Rotary Club

The matter of a public market for Brainerd was discussed at length at the weekly meeting of the Lions club Wednesday evening. John Hurley, who successfully conducted such a market for over a year in this city, was a guest of the club, and spoke at length concerning the handling of such a proposition, and the benefits to be derived therefrom, both for the farmer, merchant and consumer.

Attorney Walter F. Wieland, president of the Rotary Club, and T. B. Brusegaard, secretary of that organization, were honor guests of the Lions, and spoke of the work that is being accomplished and that should be attempted by these clubs.

H. A. Swanson was also a visitor and discussed the need of stabilizing and standardizing the prices of farm products so that the farmer could be assured of a reasonable profit and the element of chance taken out of his line of work.

Prof. Hitchcock of the high school faculty, spoke of conditions in the local schools and the need of larger quarters to take care of the record enrollment this year. Mr. Hitchcock also spoke of the interest being taken in athletics in the high school, and requested the cooperation of Brainerd citizens in furthering this branch of the school's activities.

Walter Bullock, aviator at Breezy Point, gave a very interesting talk on his chosen vocation, and answered numerous questions of the club members as to different phases of flying. Mr. Bullock spoke of the aid given to the State Forestry Service in locating and mapping out forest fire districts by aviators. He mentioned the strict regulations in Canada relative to aviation, and voiced the need of similar laws in the United States. He also brought up the need of more landing fields in northern Minnesota if flying is to receive the impetus it should have.

The club adjourned to attend the Chamber of Commerce meeting, the members going in a body.

J. ADAM BEDE TO SPEAK NOV. 4TH

Noted Lecturer and Politician, Former Congressman to Take Up Republican Issues

AT THE NEW PARK THEATRE

Large Crowds Anticipated in Brainerd on Saturday Evening to Hear Him Speak

Hon. J. Adam Bede, former congressman of Pine City, and nationally known as a lecturer, will speak on republican issues at Brainerd on Saturday evening, November 4th, at the New Park theatre.

It is always a pleasure to listen to Mr. Bede, who has the faculty of presenting his arguments in clear, incisive style, and in so interesting a manner that men of other party affiliations accord him the deepest attention.

One of Mr. Bede's recent engagements was speaking to a large convention assembled last week at Atlantic City, N. J.

The rally will not be for Brainerd alone, but the whole county is invited to come to Brainerd and hear him. He carries a special message for the farmers and they, like the other voters, should not neglect to hear him.

Missionary Society

The Missionary society of the Presbyterian church will be entertained at the manse of Mrs. S. M. Kelly on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The work we as a church are doing in Alaska will be discussed and prayer service by Mrs. C. H. Varney, using for her topic: "A Servant of Syria". Roll call response will be a Bible verse.

A cordial invitation is extended to all interested in missions.

PUBLIC HEALTH WORK IN CITY

List of Contagious Diseases in Brainerd School Checked Up From Sept. 1921 to Sept. 1922

PHYSICAL INSPECTION GIVEN

Medical Defects Reported 175, Surgical 110, Ocular 104, Dental 1650 Among Children

The beginnig of Public Health work in the United States was in 1894, and the aim then was merely the control of contagious diseases. A little later more stress was laid on the correction of defects found among school children. The big aim now among all Public Health workers is the prevention of disease by aiding the children of today in building strong bodies. However, the control of contagion and the correction of defects will always be a big part of the work.

The presence of the nurse in the school often gives a false sense of security. Parents will sometimes send their children to chool with a severe sore throat or even broken out with some eruption, and as long as the teacher or nurse does not send them home will consider it allright for them to be in school. In a city of two thousand pupils the eruption is easily overlooked and an entire room may be exposed to some contagious disease. So in order to avoid epidemics, the school and parents must work together.

From September 1921 to September 1922 the number of contagious diseases in the Brainerd schools were as follows: Scarlet fever, 5; chicken pox, 112; impetigo, 78; scabes, 40; conjuctivities 14; mumps, 28; pediculosis, 16 and ringworm 5.

During the year a physical inspection is given each child by the nurse. Any abnormal condition of the eye, ear, nose or throat is noted, a record being made of each child. He is also weighed and his normal weight found. Parents are notified of any condition apparently needing attention.

The number of notices of defects sent parents were:

Medical, 175 and 143 were cared for.

Surgical, 110 and 26 were cared for.

Ocular, 104 and 30 were cared for.

Dental, 1650 and 531 were cared for.

1,576 children were inspected.

Bedside care was given 24 patients and 176 instructive visits were made. Dr. G. J. Woolway of the Deerwood Sanatorium held 12 tuberculosis clinics, 24 patients attending. Two mental clinics were held and 48 patients examined. 768 home calls on school children were made.

Chief of police, Charles Varner acted as truant officer and 24 children were reported to him.

Child welfare visits are often so closely linked up with nursing visits that it is easier for the nurse to make the initial investigation. 60 child welfare calls were made and reported to the Child Welfare Board. 59 needy cases were reported to various charitable organizations.

The Red Cross Loan Closet which is supplied with linen and articles necessary in the sick room was of service to 28 families. Splendid cooperation was given by the doctors and dentists of the city in caring for children who needed attention, but whose parents were unable to have the child cared for. The cases were:

Removal of tonsils and adenoids, 15; eyes examined, 10; dental work, 44; ears treated, 2; free hospital care, 4.

A dental clinic was held in which every child's teeth were examined. This was made possible by the dentists giving one half day to this work. A dental contest was then started between the various schools and at the close of the year 576 of the pupils had had their teeth cared for. 90 children were given free small-pox vaccine, the doctors donating their time to the work. Free vaccine is offered every year by the school board, so very few of the pupils in the upper grades have missed the opportunity of being vaccinated.

The city health officer gave of his time very freely to the school work, during an epidemic of impetigo, at one of the schools he made a number of calls and the spread of the disease was quickly checked. His splendid cooperation is greatly appreciated.

The Maple Grove Farm Bureau Unit will meet the first Saturday instead of the second Saturday in November. A very interesting program is being arranged which will include several debates on farm subjects. The people of Brainerd are extended an invitation to be present.

CHAMBER COMMERCE IN REGULAR SESSION

City Was Praised for Reception Accorded the Minnesota State Sunday School Convention

REPORT ON LAKE LEVEL RAISING

Absence of Both President and Vice President, Meeting Presided Over by R. R. Wise

The work of the special committee of the Chamber of Commerce for the promotion of the recent state Sunday school convention held in this city, made its report at the meeting of the Chamber Wednesday evening.

Rev. E. A. Cooke, representing this committe stated that the convention had come and gone, and that many expressions of satisfaction were heard as to the quality of the speakers, the music and splendid fellowships and associations of the meetings. About four hundred outside delegates registered and at least fifty additional came for one day and did not register.

People responded nobly to the call for accomodations for the delegates, and that while on the day before the convention, when the registration committee had on rooms arranged for two hundred every visitor was taken care of without sending any away from private homes.

Last Monday omrning the committee met for the purpose of checking up on the work of the convention and found that they were faced with a deficit of over three hundred dollars. This they proceeded to raise, and have reduced that debt to less than ninety dollars to date.

John A. Hoffbauer, chairman of the publicity committee, made a written report of the advertising campaign put on recently by his committee, having for its object the extension of the tourist season in this locality. He showed that very extensive publicity had been given the Brainerd summer resort region in many of the large city dailies, these papers having published numerous editorials and front page articles supporting the work of the committee. As a result of this campaign, many tourists had registered at the different resorts in this section, and are still patronizing our playground liberally.

Walter M. Murphy reported on the Pelican Brook proposition of damming this stream in an effort to retain a higher level in the surrounding lakes next season. His report was to the effect that from observation the brook was about seven feet lower than Pelican lake, which would make the proposition impractical. He asked for an extension of time that his committee might go more deeply into the subject, and this was granted him.

P. M. Zakariasen, in charge of the tour of business men and farmers to the National Dairy Show recently held in the cities, reported on the trip, stating that there were in the neighborhood of eighteen automobiles in the tour and that several Crow Wing residents went to the show by rail, so that he estimated that over one hundred represented the county at this exhibition.

Mr. Murphy called attention to the wonderful improvement in the roads throughout the county, for which credit must be given C. H. Babcock of the State Highway Department. It was moved and supported that a set of resolutions be drawn up commending the splendid work of Mr. Babcock and his engineers, and that one be sent to Mr. Babcock and one given to the local press for publication.

Rev. E. A. Cooke called attention to the lack of highway markings, and on motion this matter was referred to the legisaltive committee.

Attention was called to the matter of signs at the Brainerd city limits on the various highways entering the city limit and other traffic information to visitors. This was referred to the public affairs committee.

A. L. Hoffman reported that he was not ready with a resume of the activities of the various committees of the Chamber of Commerce for the past year, on account of the pressure of other business, but expects to be prepared with this data by the next meeting.

The application of J. A. Gorham, manager of the Berkland Studios, was voted upon, and Mr. Gorham unanimously elected to membership in the Chamber.

In the absence of both the president and vice president, the meeting was presided over by R. R. Wise.

He mentioned the strict regulations in Canada relative to aviation, and voiced the need of similar laws in the United States. He also brought up the need of more landing fields in northern Minnesota if flying is to receive the impetus it should have.

The club adjourned to attend the Chamber of Commerce meeting, the members going in a body.

J. ADAM BEDE TO SPEAK NOV. 4TH

Noted Lecturer and Politician, Former Congressman to Take Up Republican Issues

AT THE NEW PARK THEATRE

Large Crowds Anticipated in Brainerd on Saturday Evening to Hear Him Speak

Hon. J. Adam Bede, former congressman of Pine City, and nationally known as a lecturer, will speak on republican issues at Brainerd on Saturday evening, November 4th, at the New Park theatre.

It is always a pleasure to listen to Mr. Bede, who has the faculty of presenting his arguments in clear, incisive style, and in so interesting a manner that men of other party affiliations accord him the deepest attention.

One of Mr. Bede's recent engagements was speaking to a large convention assembled last week at Atlantic City, N. J.

The rally will not be for Brainerd alone, but the whole county is invited to come to Brainerd and hear him. He carries a special message for the farmers and they, like the other voters, should not neglect to hear him.

Missionary Society

The Missionary society of the Presbyterian church will be entertained at the manse of Mrs. S. M. Kelly on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The work we as a church are doing in Alaska will be discussed and prayer service by Mrs. C. H. Varner, using for her topic: "A Servant of Syria". Roll call response will be a Bible verse.

A cordial invitation is extended to all interested in missions.

PUBLIC HEALTH WORK IN CITY

List of Contagious Diseases in Brainerd School Checked Up From Sept. 1921 to Sept. 1922

PHYSICAL INSPECTION GIVEN

Medical Defects Reported 175, Surgical 110, Ocular 104, Dental 1650 Among Children

The beginnig of Public Health work in the United States was in 1894, and the aim then was merely the control of contagious diseases. A little later more stress was laid on the correction of defects found among school children. The big aim now among all Public Health workers is the prevention of disease by aiding the children of today in building strong bodies. However, the control of contagion and the correction of defects will always be a big part of the work.

The presence of the nurse in the school often gives a false sense of security. Parents will sometimes send their children to chool with a severe sore throat or even broken out with some eruption, and as long as the teacher or nurse does not send them home will consider it allright for them to be in school. In a city of two thousand pupils the eruption is easily overlooked and an entire room may be exposed to some contagious disease. So in order to avoid epidemics, the school and parents must work together.

From September 1921 to September 1922 the number of contagious diseases in the Brainerd schools were as follows: Scarlet fever, 5; chicken pox, 112; impetigo, 78; scabes, 40; conjuctivities 14; mumps, 28; pediculosis, 16 and ringworm 5.

During the year a physical inspection is given each child by the nurse. Any abnormal condition of the eye, ear, nose or throat is noted, a record being made of each child. He is also weighed and his normal weight found. Parents are notified of any condition apparently needing attention.

The number of notices of defects sent parents were:

Medical, 175 and 143 were cared for.

Surgical, 110 and 26 were cared for.

Ocular, 104 and 30 were cared for.

Dental, 1650 and 531 were cared for.

1,576 children were inspected.

Bedside care was given 24 patients and 176 instructive visits were made. Dr. G. J. Woolway of the Deerwood Sanatorium held 12 tuberculosis clinics, 24 patients attending. Two mental clinics were held and 48 patients examined. 768 home calls on school children were made.

Chief of police, Charles Varner acted as truant officer and 24 children were reported to him.

Child welfare visits are often so closely linked up with nursing visits that it is easier for the nurse to make the initial investigation. 60 child welfare calls were made and reported to the Child Welfare Board. 59 needy cases were reported to various charitable organizations.

The Red Cross Loan Closet which is supplied with linen and articles necessary in the sick room was of service to 28 families. Splendid cooperation was given by the doctors and dentists of the city in caring for children who needed attention, but whose parents were unable to have the child cared for. The cases were:

Removal of tonsils and adenoids, 15; eyes examined, 10; dental work, 44; ears treated, 2; free hospital care, 4.

A dental clinic was held in which every child's teeth were examined. This was made possible by the dentists giving one half day to this work. A dental contest was then started between the various schools and at the close of the year 576 of the pupils had had their teeth cared for. 90 children were given free small-pox vaccine, the doctors donating their time to the work. Free vaccine is offered every year by the school board, so very few of the pupils in the upper grades have missed the opportunity of being vaccinated.

The city health officer gave of his time very freely to the school work, during an epidemic of impetigo, at one of the schools he made a number of calls and the spread of the disease was quickly checked. His splendid cooperation is greatly appreciated.

Maple Grove Unit

The Maple Grove Farm Bureau Unit will meet the first Saturday instead of the second Saturday in November. A very interesting program is being arranged which will include several debates on farm subjects. The people of Brainerd are extended an invitation to be present.

CHAMBER COMMERCE IN REGULAR SESSION

City Was Praised for Reception Accorded the Minnesota State Sunday School Convention

REPORT ON LAKE LEVEL RAISING

Absence of Both President and Vice President, Meeting Presided Over by R. R. Wise

The work of the special committee of the Chamber of Commerce for the promotion of the recent state Sunday school convention held in this city, made its report at the meeting of the Chamber Wednesday evening.

Rev. E. A. Cooke, representing this committe stated that the convention had come and gone, and that many expressions of satisfaction were heard as to the quality of the speakers, the music and splendid fellowships and associations of the meetings. About four hundred outside delegates registered and at least fifty additional came for one day and did not register.

People responded nobly to the call for accomodations for the delegates, and that while on the day before the convention, when the registration committee had on 7 rooms arranged for two hundred every visitor was taken care of without sending any away from private homes.

Last Monday morning the committee met for the purpose of checking up on the work of the convention and found that they were faced with a deficit of over three hundred dollars. This they proceeded to raise, and have reduced that debt to less than ninety dollars to date.

John A. Hoffbauer, chairman of the publicity committee, made a written report of the advertising campaign put on recently by his committee, having for its object the extension of the tourist season in this locality. He showed that very extensive publicity had been given the Brainerd summer resort region in many of the large city dailies, these papers having published numerous editorials and front page articles supporting the work of the committee. As a result of this campaign, many tourists had registered at the different resorts in this section, and are still patronizing our playground liberally.

Walter M. Murphy reported on the Pelican Brook proposition of damming this stream in an effort to retain a higher level in the surrounding lakes next season. His report was to the effect that from observation the brook was about seven feet lower than Pelican lake, which would make the proposition impractical. He asked for an extension of time that his committee might go more deeply into the subject, and this was granted him.

P. M. Zakariasen, in charge of the tour of business men and farmers to the National Dairy Show recently held in the cities, reported on the trip, stating that there were in the neighborhood of eighteen automobiles in the tour and that several Crow Wing residents went to the show by rail, so that he estimated that over one hundred represented the county at this exhibition.

Mr. Murphy called attention to the wonderful improvement in the roads throughout the county, for which credit must be given C. H. Babcock of the State Highway Department. It was moved and supported that a set of resolutions be drawn up commending the splendid work of Mr. Babcock and his engineers, and that one be sent to Mr. Babcock and one given to the local press for publication.

Rev. E. A. Cooke called attention to the lack of highway markings, and on motion this matter was referred to the legisaltive committee.

Attention was called to the matter of signs at the Brainerd city limits on the various highways entering the city limit and other traffic information to visitors. This was referred to the public affairs committee.

A. L. Hoffman reported that he was not ready with a resume of the activities of the various committees of the Chamber of Commerce for the past year, on account of the pressure of other business, but expects to be prepared with this data by the next meeting.

The application of J. A. Gorham, manager of the Berkland Studios, was voted upon, and Mr. Gorham unanimously elected to membership in the Chamber.

In the absence of both the president and vice president, the meeting was presided over by R. R. Wise.

BASEBALL PLAYERS' UNION GOING AHEAD

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, Oct. 26.—Several months ago this column announced that the major league ball players were forming a union to secure a more equitable form of contract with the club owners and to obtain a representation on the national advisory council.

At that time all the high officials of baseball ridiculed the reports in public statements, saying that the players would not be foolish enough to shoot at the well known goose.

During the fall meeting of the magnates in Chicago, they looked upon the reports more seriously, however, and they discussed the subject at length.

Shortly after the meting, reports began to spread that Raymond J. Cannon, the Milwaukee attorney who defended several members of the "Black Sox" and who was retained by some of the players to form the organization, was going to use the union to force the "Black Sox" back into baseball. Other stories were circulated that the players were going to call a general strike next spring for increased salaries.

Perhaps the club owners had nothing to do with the circulation of these reports, but it seemed rather coincidental that they all started after the meeting of the magnates.

* * * * * * * * *

Cannon denies that the players have ever considered a general strike or an organized effort to boost salaries. Many of the leaders in the movement are satisfied with the money they are drawing at the present time, but they want a contract that will guarantee them justice when they start to slip.

The "ten day" clause in the existing form of contract between the players and the club owners has always been a subject of dissatisfaction to the players. In effect it is no contract at all, because the players have no recourse outside of an appeal to Commissioner Landis.

Here again the players object to the personnel of the national advisory commission, which deprives them of representation or a voice in settling arguments which concern only the players and the club owners.

* * * * * * * * *

So far Commissioner Landis has wisely held aloof from salary arguments, but he will be forced into the controversies eventually and the presence of a player on the board would not make his task any more difficult.

* * * * * * * * *

Cannon claims that he was retained only to get the money coming to several of the "Black Sox" and that he never entertained the notion of getting their jobs back.

In spite of the general sentiment against them, most of the fair minded fans agreed that Comiskey had no legal or moral right to withhold the money that was coming to the wayward players under the contracts which he had signed.

* * * * * * * * *

Names of the players interested in the organization of the union and the players who have signed for membership have not been made public and it will be a surprise when they are published. The organization will not lack dignity when the membership is made known.

* * * * * * * * *

Propaganda coming from rather unknown sources is being directed against Cannon for no just reason. He is a young attorney who fought for his education and is now fighting to get ahead in his profession. He accepted a retainer with the "Black Sox" because he felt they had a just case and he should not be condemned for fighting for his clients.

"Something to Think About" at Lyceum

Cecil B. De Mille has departed from his usual society background for his plot in "Something to Think About" and, though the picture unfolds a virile story of plain folks in the country instead of a sophisticated drama of married life, it is characterized with the same artistry and care of production that is expected in a De Mille photoplay. "Something to Think About" pleased a large audience at the Lyceum theatre last evening and will remain there for tonight only.

Jeanie Macpherson, who wrote the continuity for such De Mille successes as "Male and Female" and "Why Change Your Wife?" is the author of the story. The theme deals with Ruth Anderson, pretty daughter of a country blacksmith. Sent to boarding school by the rich young man of the neighborhood, David Markley, it is understood that she is to marry him. But at the last moment, Ruth elopes with Jim Dirk, a product of the village. The latter is killed in an accident. She returns to her native village, but her father, gone blind and enraged at her infidelity toward Markley, drives her from the house. Through a dramatic turn of events she and Markley are brought together.

"Paying the Piper" to be Shown Here

A Paramount picture of more than average merit—a George Fitzmaurice production—will be the feature attraction at the Lyceum theatre for two days beginning Friday. The featured player is Dorothy Dickson, a well known dancer of New York, and she is supported by an exceptionally clever corps of players.

The story deals with the idle rich of the great metropolis, who are hardened to the ordinary pleasures of life because of their wealth. When those directly concerned in the narrative become impoverished, their regeneration is accomplished. There are numerous thrills in the development of this highly interesting theme. The picture has been produced with unusual attention to detail, and many of the sets are said to be magnificent.

Evidently Christians.

An American family living in China recently hired two servants from Nanking, a missionary center. Accordingly, the new servants were Christians. Another Chinese servant in the family discovered the newcomers' religion and reported the fact to his mistress. Asked how he knew the new boys were Christians, he said: "Oh, they know all about God, Jesus Christ, and Santa Claus."

Her First Love Affair.

When I was six years old I thought I was in love with a boy the same age. We both attended private kindergarten. While he was out of the room I fixed his chair and when he came back to sit down I pulled it from under him. He cried and had to be taken home, and that ended my "first love affair."—Exchange.

IN PERPETUITY

By BERTA RICE

©, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"The Ladies' Circle will meet at Sister Trask's on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A goodly attendance is requested, to consider an important church matter," announced Pastor Weeks to his Sunday morning congregation.

Comparatively few knew that the "church matter" mentioned referred to the difficult task of preventing the widow Bailey from entering upon her fifty-first year as organist of Hillaton's Baptist church. A naturaly curiosity therefore, aided in assembling a "goodly attendance" on the appointed date.

The subject soon came up for discussion. Mrs. Trask, president of the circle, declared: "Last Sunday's performance capped the climax. She played the last hymn in the wrong key, and didn't know it."

"We've stood it for 25 years," opined Mrs. Miller.

"Twenty-five years? Susan Bailey was church organist before I was born, and I'm forty-two," complacently admitted Mrs. Trask.

"Aren't we getting away from the main issue?" was Mrs. Campbell's diplomatic interference. "We all agree," she continued, "that Mrs. Bailey has outlived her usefulness as an organist. I move we appoint our church clerk, Mr. Miller, to acquaint her with the facts and request her resignation. I also suggest that he carry a substantial check with him."

"I second the—"

"Atwood won't do it. All the disagreeable work is put onto him."

"Motion," concluded a member.

The president rapped for order. "You must let me put the question, Mrs. Miller."

The motion had a majority vote, the only exception being Mrs. Miller, who emphatically asserted: "Atwood won't do it."

He was spared the ordeal by Mrs. Bailey leaving the village on a vacation trip the following day.

"It is an answer to prayer," he said to his wife. I hated the job of dismissing her. Now we can get a new organist and have her installed before Mrs. Bailey returns. I don't know where we'll get another to play just for glory."

Momentarily, however, the change was made without friction. Miss Gladys Young, a seminary graduate, was engaged for the next Sunday.

The next morning service began auspiciously. A full choir and a large congregation were in attendance. While the people assembled, Miss Young played an overture, but the music was so faint it was scarcely heard.

After the last hymn, Miss Young sprang from her seat, and faced the singers with an angry ultimatum.

"That's the last time I'll pump this wheezy old box," she declared, pounding the keyboard with her fist. "I'm paralyzed to the waist."

"Why, what's the matter?" they questioned.

"Matter? Just sit down and work those pedals. You'll need a ton weight on each foot. And the bellows leaks something awful."

"Mrs. Bailey never seemed to mind it," said one.

"Then she's the one to play. I'm through."

"Oh, Gladys, you'll have to play this afternoon—there's no one else."

"I refuse to play. And that's final."

Mr. Miller rode over to Camp Milford, where Mrs. Bailey was vacationing.

"See, they can't do without me even for one Sunday," she triumphed.

At two minutes of three, Mrs. Bailey, with her blond wig askew, and hat vampishly tilted over her right eye, took her glorified seat at the organ. Boldly the music began, and continued, with more than the usual instrumental errors that were charitably ignored. The service closed with the national anthem. The tenor hurriedly suggested to Mrs. Bailey that they sing without accompaniment if she felt nervous about playing without notes.

"Good land! I can play the 'Star Spangled Banner' with my eyes shut! Go back there and sing."

The patriotic fervor expressed by the indomitable spirit of the aged organist communicated itself to the audience, which joined in the exultant refrain with a verve and abandon that was inspiring. "O'er the land of the free, and the home of the brave," reached the finale in a triumphant peal that set all hearts athrill.

A week later the choir gave Mrs. Bailey a surprise party that included a generous check.. Mrs. Miller, who was absent, inquired of her husband: "Wasn't Mrs. Bailey pleased?"

"Pleased is a weak word. When I left, her stiffened old legs were dancing a double hornpipe around the room, while she waved the check aloft, crying:

'Look at that! They want me! They must want me!'

"Whether we want her or not, she is, from now on, organist in perpetuity, until she joins the choir invisible."

"Canaille."

"Canaille" is a French word, referring to the most degraded element of the populace, and applied to an individual as a term of contempt.

SYMPATHY IS SHOWN BY ANTS

Naturalist Tells How They Set Free Their Fellows When He Imprisoned Them.

An eminent naturalist, while watching a column of foraging ants, one day, placed a small stone on one of them to secure it. The next that approached, on discovering the situation of its associate, ran back in an excited manner and communicated with the others, when all rushed to the rescue.

Some bit at the stone and tried to move it, others seized the prisoner by the legs and tugged with a force which threatened to separate them from its body; but they persevered until they got the captive free.

Interested by this evidence of intelligence, the naturalist next covered one of the ants with a piece of clay, leaving only the ends of its antennae projecting. It was soon discovered by its fellows, who set to work immediately and by biting off pieces of the clay soon liberated it.

On another occasion a very few ants were passing along at intervals. One of these was confined under a piece of clay a little distance from the trail, with its head projecting. Several ants went by without seeing it, but at last it was discovered by a sharp-eyed friend that at once undertook to pull it out. Failing in this it immediately hurried off for assistance, and soon returned with a dozen or more companions, all evidently fully informed of the circumstances of the case, for they made directly for their imprisoned comrade, and shortly set him free.

Can such actions be regarded as instinctive? They seem rather to be the result of sympathy, the ants rendering to their fellows such assistance as man is in the habit of rendering to his kind.

STARFISH HAS MANY FEET

Cover the Underside of Each Arm and Are Withdrawn Inside Skin When He Rests.

The starfish is one of the commonest of sea-shore creatures. If you pick one out of his pool and place him in a vessel full of salt water, you will soon find that he is beginning to walk. The underside of each arm is covered with an immense number of tiny feet. When the starfish is at rest all these feet are drawn up inside his skin, but as soon as he wants to move he pushes them out in all directions. Each of them has a little sucker at its end.

He makes very good use of these suckers when he comes across his favorite food, an oyster, or some other shell fish. He climbs onto the shell and entwines his arms around it. Every sucker takes a firm hold, and then he begins to pull. The oyster pulls against him, but usually the starfish manages in the end to make him open his shell a fraction of an inch. As soon as this happens, he squirts into the shell a quantity of poison, which has the effect of paralyzing the muscle which holds it shut. And the starfish dines at his leisure. Some fishermen are so annoyed when they pull up a starfish that they tear him in two. But each of the torn halves soon shoots out new limbs and becomes a complete starfish.

YOUR KIDNEYS OR BACK BOTHER YOU?

Austin, Minn.—"Some time ago I caught a heavy cold which settled on my kidneys and affected my bladder. I suffered intensely and had to take to my bed. My mother recommended Dr. Pierce's Anuric (kidney and backache) Tablets and I took them to relieve the congestion in my kidneys and bladder. They soon gave me relief, and not only that, but they eventually restored me to my usual good health. I took six bottles of An-uric, but it was well worth it for my kidneys and bladder have been in perfect condition ever since."—Mrs. John Zook, 103 S. Jay St.

Since it is such a simple matter to step into a drug store and obtain Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets, anyone who earnestly desires to regain health and new life will waste no time in obtaining them. Adv.

BASEBALL PLAYERS' UNION GOING AHEAD

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, Oct. 26.—Several months ago this column announced that the major league ball players were forming a union to secure a more equitable form of contract with the club owners and to obtain a representation on the national advisory council.

At that time all the high officials of baseball ridiculed the reports in public statements, saying that the players would not be foolish enough to shoot at the well known goose.

During the fall meeting of the magnates in Chicago, they looked upon the reports more seriously, however, and they discussed the subject at length.

Shortly after the meting, reports began to spread that Raymond J. Cannon, the Milwaukee attorney who defended several members of the "Black Sox" and who was retained by some of the players to form the organization, was going to use the union to force the "Black Sox" back into baseball. Other stories were circulated that the players were going to call a general strike next spring for increased salaries.

Perhaps the club owners had nothing to do with the circulation of these reports, but it seemed rather coincidental that they all started after the meeting of the magnates.

* * * * * * * * *

Cannon denies that the players have ever considered a general strike or an organized effort to boost salaries. Many of the leaders in the movement are satisfied with the money they are drawing at the present time, but they want a contract that will guarantee them justice when they start to slip.

The "ten day" clause in the existing form of contract between the players and the club owners has always been a subject of dissatisfaction to the players. In effect it is no contract at all, because the players have no recourse outside of an appeal to Commissioner Landis.

Here again the players object to the personnel of the national advisory commission, which deprives them of representation or a voice in settling arguments which concern only the players and the club owners.

* * * * * * * * *

So far Commissioner Landis has wisely held aloof from salary arguments, but he will be forced into the controversies eventually and the presence of a player on the board would not make his task any more difficult.

* * * * * * * * *

Cannon claims that he was retained only to get the money coming to several of the "Black Sox" and that he never entertained the notion of getting their jobs back.

In spite of the general sentiment against them, most of the fair minded fans agreed that Comiskey had no legal or moral right to withhold the money that was coming to the wayward players under the contracts which he had signed.

* * * * * * * * *

Names of the players interested in the organization of the union and the players who have signed for membership have not been made public and it will be a surprise when they are published. The organization will not lack dignity when the membership is made known.

* * * * * * * * *

Propaganda coming from rather unknown sources is being directed against Cannon for no just reason. He is a young attorney who fought for his education and is now fighting to get ahead in his profession. He accepted a retainer with the "Black Sox" because he felt they had a just case and he should not be condemned for fighting for his clients.

"Something to Think About" at Lyceum

Cecil B. De Mille has departed from his usual society background for his plot in "Something to Think About" and, though the picture unfolds a virile story of plain folks in the country instead of a sophisticated drama of married life, it is characterized with the same artistry and care of production that is expected in a De Mille photoplay. "Something to Think About" pleased a large audience at the Lyceum theatre last evening and will remain there for tonight only.

Jeanie Macpherson, who wrote the continuity for such De Mille successes as "Male and Female" and "Why Change Your Wife?" is the author of the story. The theme deals with Ruth Anderson, pretty daughter of a country blacksmith. Sent to boarding school by the rich young man of the neighborhood, David Markley, it is understood that she is to marry him. But at the last moment, Ruth elopes with Jim Dirk, a product of the village. The latter is killed in an accident. She returns to her native village, but her father, gone blind and enraged at her infidelity toward Markley, drives her from the house. Through a dramatic turn of events she and Markley are brought together.

"Paying the Piper" to be Shown Here

A Paramount picture of more than average merit—a George Fitzmaurice production—will be the feature attraction at the Lyceum theatre for two days beginning Friday. The featured player is Dorothy Dickson, a well known dancer of New York, and she is supported by an exceptionally clever corps of players.

The story deals with the idle rich of the great metropolis, who are hardened to the ordinary pleasures of life because of their wealth. When those directly concerned in the narrative become impoverished, their regeneration is accomplished. There are numerous thrills in the development of this highly interesting theme. The picture has been produced with unusual attention to detail, and many of the sets are said to be magnificent.

Evidently Christians.

An American family living in China recently hired two servants from Nanking, a missionary center. Accordingly, the new servants were Christians. Another Chinese servant in the family discovered the newcomers' religion and reported the fact to his mistress. Asked how he knew the new boys were Christians, he said: "Oh, they know all about God, Jesus Christ, and Santa Claus."

Her First Love Affair.

When I was six years old I thought I was in love with a boy the same age. We both attended private kindergarten. While he was out of the room I fixed his chair and when he came back to sit down I pulled it from under him. He cried and had to be taken home, and that ended my "first love affair."—Exchange.

IN PERPETUITY

By BERTA RICE

©, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"The Ladies' Circle will meet at Sister Trask's on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A goodly attendance is requested, to consider an important church matter," announced Pastor Weeks to his Sunday morning congregation.

Comparatively few knew that the "church matter" mentioned referred to the difficult task of preventing the widow Bailey from entering upon her fifty-first year as organist of Hillaton's Baptist church. A naturaly curiosity therefore, aided in assembling a "goodly attendance" on the appointed date.

The subject soon came up for discussion. Mrs. Trask, president of the circle, declared: "Last Sunday's performance capped the climax. She played the last hymn in the wrong key, and didn't know it."

"We've stood it for 25 years," opined Mrs. Miller.

"Twenty-five years? Susan Bailey was church organist before I was born, and I'm forty-two," complacently admitted Mrs. Trask.

"Aren't we getting away from the main issue?" was Mrs. Campbell's diplomatic interference. "We all agree," she continued, "that Mrs. Bailey has outlived her usefulness as an organist. I move we appoint our church clerk, Mr. Miller, to acquaint her with the facts and request her resignation. I also suggest that he carry a substantial check with him."

"I second the—"

"Atwood won't do it. All the disagreeable work is put onto him."

"Motion," concluded a member.

The president rapped for order. "You must let me put the question, Mrs. Miller."

The motion had a majority vote, the only exception being Mrs. Miller, who emphatically asserted: "Atwood won't do it."

He was spared the ordeal by Mrs. Bailey leaving the village on a vacation trip the following day.

"It is an answer to prayer," he said to his wife. I hated the job of dismissing her. Now we can get a new organist and have her installed before Mrs. Bailey returns. I don't know where we'll get another to play just for glory."

Momentarily, however, the change was made without friction. Miss Gladys Young, a seminary graduate, was engaged for the next Sunday.

The next morning service began auspiciously. A full choir and a large congregation were in attendance. While the people assembled, Miss Young played an overture, but the music was so faint it was scarcely heard.

After the last hymn, Miss Young sprang from her seat, and faced the singers with an angry ultimatum.

"That's the last time I'll pump this wheezy old box," she declared, pounding the keyboard with her fist. "I'm paralyzed to the waist."

"Why, what's the matter?" they questioned.

"Matter? Just sit down and work those pedals. You'll need a ton weight on each foot. And the bellows leaks something awful."

"Mrs. Bailey never seemed to mind it," said one.

"Then she's the one to play. I'm through."

"Oh, Gladys, you'll have to play this afternoon—there's no one else."

"I refuse to play. And that's final."

Mr. Miller rode over to Camp Milford, where Mrs. Bailey was vacationing.

"See, they can't do without me even for one Sunday," she triumphed.

At two minutes of three, Mrs. Bailey, with her blond wig askew, and hat vampishly tilted over her right eye, took her glorified seat at the organ. Boldly the music began, and continued, with more than the usual instrumental errors that were charitably ignored. The service closed with the national anthem. The tenor hurriedly suggested to Mrs. Bailey that they sing without accompaniment if she felt nervous about playing without notes.

"Good land! I can play the 'Star Spangled Banner' with my eyes shut! Go back there and sing."

The patriotic fervor expressed by the indomitable spirit of the aged organist communicated itself to the audience, which joined in the exultant refrain with a verve and abandon that was inspiring. "O'er the land of the free, and the home of the brave," reached the finale in a triumphant peal that set all hearts athrill.

A week later the choir gave Mrs. Bailey a surprise party that included a generous check. Mrs. Miller, who was absent, inquired of her husband: "Wasn't Mrs. Bailey pleased?"

"Pleased is a weak word. When I left, her stiffened old legs were dancing a double hornpipe around the room, while she waved the check aloft, crying:

'Look at that! They want me! They must want me!'

"Whether we want her or not, she is, from now on, organist in perpetuity, until she joins the choir invisible."

"Canaille."

"Canaille" is a French word, referring to the most degraded element of the populace, and applied to an individual as a term of contempt.

SYMPATHY IS SHOWN BY ANTS

Naturalist Tells How They Set Free Their Fellows When He Imprisoned Them.

An eminent naturalist, while watching a column of foraging ants, one day, placed a small stone on one of them to secure it. The next that approached, on discovering the situation of its associate, ran back in an excited manner and communicated with the others, when all rushed to the rescue.

Some bit at the stone and tried to move it, others seized the prisoner by the legs and tugged with a force which threatened to separate them from its body; but they persevered until they got the captive free.

Interested by this evidence of intelligence, the naturalist next covered one of the ants with a piece of clay, leaving only the ends of its antennae projecting. It was soon discovered by its fellows, who set to work immediately and by biting off pieces of the clay soon liberated it.

On another occasion a very few ants were passing along at intervals. One of these was confined under a piece of clay a little distance from the trail, with its head projecting. Several ants went by without seeing it, but at last it was discovered by a sharp-eyed friend that at once undertook to pull it out. Failing in this it immediately hurried off for assistance, and soon returned with a dozen or more companions, all evidently fully informed of the circumstances of the case, for they made directly for their imprisoned comrade, and shortly set him free.

Can such actions be regarded as instinctive? They seem rather to be the result of sympathy, the ants rendering to their fellows such assistance as man is in the habit of rendering to his kind.

STARFISH HAS MANY FEET

Cover the Underside of Each Arm and Are Withdrawn Inside Skin When He Rests.

The starfish is one of the commonest of sea-shore creatures. If you pick one out of his pool and place him in a vessel full of salt water, you will soon find that he is beginning to walk. The underside of each arm is covered with an immense number of tiny feet. When the starfish is at rest all these feet are drawn up inside his skin, but as soon as he wants to move he pushes them out in all directions. Each of them has a little sucker at its end.

He makes very good use of these suckers when he comes across his favorite food, an oyster, or some other shell fish. He climbs onto the shell and entwines his arms around it. Every sucker takes a firm hold, and then he begins to pull. The oyster pulls against him, but usually the starfish manages in the end to make him open his shell a fraction of an inch. As soon as this happens, he squirts into the shell a quantity of poison, which has the effect of paralyzing the muscle which holds it shut. And the starfish dines at his leisure. Some fishermen are so annoyed when they pull up a starfish that they tear him in two. But each of the torn halves soon shoots out new limbs and becomes a complete starfish.

YOUR KIDNEYS OR BACK BOTHER YOU?

Austin, Minn.—"Some time ago I caught a heavy cold which settled on my kidneys and affected my bladder. I suffered intensely and had to take to my bed. My mother recommended Dr. Pierce's Anuric (kidney and backache) Tablets and I took them to relieve the congestion in my kidneys and bladder. They soon gave me relief, and not only that, but they eventually restored me to my usual good health. I took six bottles of An-uric, but it was well worth it for my kidneys and bladder have been in perfect condition ever since."—Mrs. John Zook, 103 S. Jay St.

Since it is such a simple matter to step into a drug store and obtain Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets, anyone who earnestly desires to regain health and new life will waste no time in obtaining them. Adv.
